now it wtarts getting more iteresting

Stve esaid on the 28th he had filed 12 days laterhe claimed he said
then he would file within 10 days

I have the right to e served with 10 days of iling

so if stee wasn't lying then I must have been served by now

so no matter we have proof a steve lie

since he can't sue not and not have me served

I have the sme rights as you do face this fact

you have the power to attack as you wish, I can't stop you, nor will you respond to any apeal of reason or noloty or plain sense

I can return that fire I have the power and your can't stop me either.

I alone am willing to even discuss terms for peace

you clearly want this war or you want me conceed to allwing your barrane of atack to go unanswered

The power to choose to return fire is MINE

the loading RRAP with ammo is yours

Well I guess I'm not a serious USENET user. I'm only a Professional Engineer [retired], chief project engineer [retired], Program Chief Engineer USAF WS-118 RS/RV [retired] and hold both BSEE and MA degrees.

That said, I prefer TOP POSTING for simplicity sake, for quick reading of responses to posts I've previously read, and not wasting time scrolling through 100+ lines of your antiquated arbitrary responses.

Naw. I'm just waiting for Steve to apologize.

I guess he'd rather take people to court to cover up his own inability

I'm sure that Mark's family has been confiding in an anonymous sociopath.

Aren't you longing for some family somewhere, Roger? Be sure to take your lithium and crawl back under the baseboard with the other cockroaches before someone turns the lights on.

One thing's for sure: Mark will never be low man on the r.r.a.p. totem

You may have a point, Mark. You'd have to understand that you were being mortified or shamed. You'd have to be capable of being shamed and there really isn't much evidence of that. You've been ridiculed and made to look foolish by others and you've made yourself look foolish.
It appears that you simply don't realize it.

given the whining from Steve and Jim about I do come to a conclusion that if adpted it will result in a set rules that is largely ignored and/or incorrectly applied till the FCC decides to drop the whole and leave the matter in our hands (whcih is whee it wshould have been in the first place,

thus it seems thta regulation by bandwidth my be a good intermedaite step toward ending FCC mandates and exclsuive presere for Morse code meaning it sounds like a decent idea if we can't go the end result in

No, but Woger does claim that I am behind almost every post, and that's because I am. I have a thousand sock puppets, but Woger always sees through them and quickly reveals that it's me posting: Lardass Lloyd.

I also hang around Woger's house at night and lurk in his closets.
After he's turned out most of the lights, those elongated and scary shadows he sees as he tries to fall asleep are cast by me.

I am everywhere. I am Lloyd, and I'm scary as hell.

I've also tried to hide under Woger's bed so that I can scare him at night, but there's never any room. Roger is already under his bed hiding fromt he ceiling ghosts which he thinks could drop down on him as he sleeps.

Is that the reason that you sleep under your bed too, Markie?

I don't believe that Steve has any trouble telling one gender from another. I also have no trouble believing that you've found some female to share your life. She is likely violating one of the prime tenets for a good life: "Never sleep with anyone who has more problems than you do". If she isn't, then you are.

You understyandthat? I've never engaged in enagging. I don't care if you're never "moritified" or shamed.

> But I lack a sense shame compatable with your understanding

It isn't at all past my understanding, Mark. You were mis-wired in a number of ways. You have no grasp of societal mores. You're a misfit.

I don't even know where hothers live. Society decides upon the standards, Mark. That's why we have certain laws, certain conventions of behavior. You may live outside some of those laws and conventions, but you'll likely be shunned by society. If you break certain of the laws by which our society lives, they put you away.

Then you really weren't a ham radio operator. You were just a two-bit operator.

Hey Jeffy-poo, did you know that the very first hams didn't have licenses either? Early pirates they were, experimenters, risk-takers... Nothing like the buy-it-off-shelf and plug it in lazy ass hams of today. Pass a simple test with mulitple answers and you got an extra ticket and with only 5wpm code too! You call that a license? I hear extras every day who don't know crap about basic tube theory or for that matter, simple ohms law. What's up with that? You guys can take your breakfast ceral ham licenses and shove them where the sun doesn't shine, they are worthless!

You could always cut the un-necessary info and bottom post. Only leave the relevant info to be answered intact. Why more people don't do this I have no idea.

Nope.

Congrats on spelling "flush" correctly.

However no matter how many times you "flush", you can't "flush" the truth.

Perhaps in "flushing" things, they disappear from YOUR realm, but the rest of us still see it, hear it, and know it to be true.

I just re-lable it "More Markie Mularkie" and everyone knows it's more "Mark Morgan" humiliating Mark Morgan.

And Markie...It's YOUR labelling of threads with inappropriate profanities that causes more disruption of the NG than anything I've

How is it despicable? Markie has proudly boasted of perverted

What Mark "showed me" had nothing to do with bandwidth and everything to do with his mental defect, Brain.

Your on-going defense of him shows me (and the rest of the NG) yours.

He has. And I answered him. His response was to go on the aforementioned tirade.

I've asked YOU why you insist on suggesting that others act one way and then do it yourself.

You've answered with YOUR silence.

You're here. What's YOUR excuse?

Where's YOUR "meaningful debate" or "thoughtful intercourse"...?!?!

Where are the answers to questions put ot you YEARS AGO on subjects you thought you'd never be challenged on, yet can't seem to get past...?!?!

Perhaps they won the lottery. Perhaps I'm not the only one that they have a "problem" with.

MOST LIKELY is that this NG has accomplished exactly SQUAT, even when there was "meaningful intercourse".

On the otherhand, one of my pieces in this forum was a featured article in Worldradio magazine (for which I was paid a fee, however I returned it uncashed). My comments are routinely quoted in "CQ" magazine. Myself and several other regular posters appear in various
"CQ" quotes on a semi-frequent basis.

And we have YET to see "N0IMD" in ANY such role. Not even a mention as a "slim" in any DX journal during "Restore Hope". Nor do we see KB9RQZ, N9OGL, Frankie of Silliland nor Lennie the Loser.

For starting numerous threads claiming people are homosexuals and/or pedophiles.

For writing: "Raped an old friend."

There is no cause for that kind of behavio[u]r on rrap.

Apologize at once.

No one has been "accused" of anything that wasn't part-and-parcel of some thing they said or did, Brian...And YES, this includes you.

Was it written to or about you...?!?!

There is no cause for you to ignore requests for validation of assertions you make or proof of having done the things you claim....But you do.

Steve,

Since I've got to read his post (since you replied to it and sent it with your reply), rather than trying to decode it, could we simply take up a collection and buy him a spell checker? That would help a bit, but would not help in understanding the ramblings very much ;)

For a second, I thought he was talking about theta regulation. That left me puzzled for a couple of seconds :))

Proudly boasted? how did I do this?

after some of the barbarian (including yourself) went digging around and reposted materail that I am not ashamed (just never thought they belonged her) I admknowledged them and we tried to go but you keep making a big deal of so I defend my right to be and to do so what? I like dominating sex amoug consenting adults that is not rape

and it does not cover Mark morgan caught on tape....

why do you post despticble thing about

ywhy do you lie about them the health of their families close

it shows that steve lack the sense of shame amy analys says it he likely had so it was stopped and I contiue to look for effective tactics

steve keeps trying the same thing over and over it did not work in the past is not likely to work today

if you liek I am hijacking your hijacking of a thread sure

but you do it all the time you posted in your reply nothing about the RM just peronal attack against Todd

don't doubt trying to provoke him in another outburst so you could flame him some some

you have admited to such tactics in another thread

BTW i must complement you you on that admision it shows their may be some hope for you in mental porblem that is your paranoia dn meglomania prehaps in some rural backwater like you live that is the case (but I doubt it) but not in the real wolrd

I the only days I don't hear the at least one the word "shit damn or fuck or the variants like fucking etc, is a day I don't leave the house. the FCC itself agree that in some contexts that Fuck and fucking could be used on braodcast TV in primetime (they recanted but they

HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!

You not only want to shove your poorly framed ideas down other's throats, you want them to pay you to do it.

Uhhhhhhhhhhh....No.

No one said they weren't.

We just said they are not used in PROPER society.

More like some up-country backwater penninsula town where noone is anyone and no one cares.

You got that backwards, as usual.

They recanted because there was a furor raised by dozens of parent organizations that don't want thier kids being raised with gutter-mouths.

And in most civil settings, words like the ones you used above don't get used because they are profane and unnecessary for effective adult communication.

No, he did not lie.

Not by anyone here who could do it effectively. Lennie comes close, but only because he can "usually" express himself without profanity...But even he needs to drop to the gutter on frequent occassion. For him it's a homecoming.

Oh NO, Markie, you do ALL about it! If it weren't FOR you, there'd be nothing to do except discuss real radio stuff.

Perhaps you consider it "preaching" because the content makes you feel guilty.

Obvioulsy false.

If you saw the "larger view" you wouldn't have made such a fool out of yourself over the last 30 days or so.

The "248 IQ" (one of your bigger mistruths) obviously does not possess the requisite skills to fully and competently express itself without profanity.

i am not thanking a deity I don't believe in you have just told another lie which acording to you is the most uncivl thing you can do personaly I find calling some a child abuser or rapist ore uncivil but then I am an intlegent human being unlike yourself

another lie

before I returned you were going on and on with lies about about Todd

you don't discuss radio here at all I doubt you ever discuss radio much indeed I don't think you can discuss radio

why do you say that?

I have efectively acomlished some of my goals

I have clearly shown you be a lying hypocrite

I have gotten(with BB's help) you to admit you are a control freak

how do you figure

It is such a problem to express anything at aleel you can understand

so yes I haev droped the leel to include profanity

if you and dave leave then I can suse adultlang again

Sure he does!

Markie, you've NOT been paying attention to what Lennie writes...YOU are the VERY ESSENCE of what Lennie HATES about Amateur Radio! It's knowing that low-lifes like YOU can manage to pass the tests for licensure that he doesn't want to associate with! YOU are the unwashed masses that he considers himself too good to associate with!

Nope. It's documented right there.

You claim to be a pagan, yet are offering thanks to dieties that don't exist in your world.

I tried.

You and three of your Feeble Five bretheren managed to deter that.

I am surprised you can SPELL "radio".

And besides, Markie, YOU have already demonstrated that you can't discuss radio stuff...You don't know the terminology and you are unfamiliar with the rules. (Witness you recent flailings over the 60 meter band with Hans...)

That's because the complete scope of your Amateur Radio knowledge is RRAP. Try reading some of the printed journals from time-to-time.

you call thata run in with the law

it was over a fasle charge and then let us get the story right since reutrning to RRAp I have 3 runs in with that law (once the c"charge" f elder abuse likel from you)

once over a charge of child abuse cerainly from

and once for alegeation I was suaciadal sign by an LPN out of TN, IOW
you

if that isa run in with the law then the phrase is all but meaningless

I have also had a run in withe law becuase my neighboor objects to the use of a powered snow thower

let me see I was questioned by some yesterday over a shooting in greenbay sadly I arrived on the snce far too late to see anything

I supose youd call the cop sliding into me on the snow a run in I certainly do but not the sort that means much

BTW I hve not had a run in with the law over your mailing of DEc5 about my "threatening" you or on your charge that Iwas caught on tape molsesting a kid

Isn't there a way of getting your licence without sitting for the exam....
eg... being educated in one of the following professions.
electronics engineer
communications technician
physics professor.
Sounds possible to me.

You can BUY one from "Gordon West" radio school. You don't have to know shit to pass as Gordo and wife will make sure that you do even if it takes "editing" of your final test (you will be instructed to do it in PENCIL)
he also sells "Commercial Tickets" for around $1000. That's a 3 day crash course.
Why he has not been investigated or sent a "test" person is really amazing.

That's the most convoluted piece of garbage you've written in, oh, the last ten or fifteen minutes.

If I understand correctly, you never said that anyone had to "reapet" your words and you'd prefer that no one does, but if they do "reapet" them, then they must "reapet" them.

Entice? Mark, I wouldn't entice you over anything. If you can't or complain about.

Steve said no such thing, Mark. I'm beginning to worry about your mental state.

As a matter of fact, the subject line, not the title says, "steve claims he can see over the net". When I play tennis, I can see over the
net. When I play volleyball, I can see through the net, but not over it.

Okay, you've written other, more convoluted pieces of garbage within the last ten for fifteen minutes.

You have a big "porblem" alright. Stve and Dve are lng abt yr postion when they summarize that which you've written and it turns out to contain two opposites.

That's quite right. She has the highest IQ ever tested. You claim that yours is even higher--but there's been no evidence of it demonstrated in anything you've ever posted here.

So you were placed in the mental health system and didn't just stroll in such issues? Don't people with such problems just make an appointment to see someone? Why did you think that I knew that you were receiving treatment over your divorce?

How is it a lie, Mark. You say that I've taken something out of context. I've invited you to provide the context. You've declined you get exactly the treatement you and steve have been dishing out here

the sigma people like you and steve put on seeing mental health is well known

if you truly are un aware of this fact aske politely in a another

I''l do you one better I quote it here"steve claims he can see over the net"
if you had read the title you would not have had any reason to pose a question

Produce evidence that Steve wrote it. Prove it.

Before you look any more foolish, look up the definition of the word "observe". I've observed your behavior here for years and I've never seen you.

The word "net" isn't the issue, you dumb cluck. Read your own subject line.

Something doesn't ring true here, Mark. Your commanding officer "offered time off" if you strolled over for a chat with mental health professionals? Something must have told him that you needed that stroll.

I've never claimed to "read RRAP closely". I've ignored many of your posts, largely because of who and what you are.

Sigma people? I'm a Delta person myself. Now you're talking about people like Steve and me. Earlier, you wrote "you and steve". It seems that you were incorrect earlier.

Oh, what fun it is to peruse these many posts. Or, rather, how depressing it is. You RRAP goons should look at yourselves. Two goons using a nearly identical screen name are turning rrap upside down. Mark..you are stupid. You may indeed be Dyslexic, but you are at the same time a Class A Ignoramus. And the clown from the UK? Stupid as well, Ignoramus to boot.

The victim du jour seems to be K4YZ and the brain dead groupies are doing as a pack of mindless dogs oft do.they pile on their victim en masse.

For filth-minded Roger, "en masse" means piling on, but not in the homosexual sense you are used to.

Todd? You are excused. Why? Because you are such a blithering idiot that nobody takes you seriously. Exchanging barbs with you is akin to slapping the Class Idiot around the shower room as he scrambles to find his underwear. The bullies like you, Todd, because it makes them feel "tough" to berate you. Not that you don't deserve it, mind you.

Then there is Lloyd Davies. Lloyd doesn't post here and is a victim of misrepresentation and accusation by one of the most infamous of stalkers east of the Mississippi. Most of us know who that is and most of us have killfiled the low-life clown.

Carry on, boys. To date you have collectively succeeded in taking RRAP from a collegiate level group of friends to a low-end elementary education level of enemies.

Aren't you proud of yourselves?

Several of your recent posts suggest otherwise. If you really knew the meaning of the word, you wouldn't continue to make a fool of yourself by writing that Steve claims to "see" you.

well Ia m not making a fool of myself I was making a joke based on the various meanings of the word

OTOH truely neither of you can propely observe me for more than the extent of my dyslexia at given monets over the net the mediums rpevents any real meaning observation

Perhaps you should be in a mental health institution. But first, go back to second grade and learn how to speak and spell.

First, you claim to be a poet and now you're Jerry Seinfeld. I guess the big joke was the part where Steve didn't say what you wrote that he said--or maybe the joke was that you screwed up the subject line.

If one spends the time reassembling the word jumble of your posts, it isn't difficult to see that 1) you have a number of issues and that 2) your IQ is about 140-150 points shy of that claimed 248.

I have little doubt that if a box of toothpicks were spilled on the floor, Mark could correctly tell us how many were spilled. He could probably tell you how many beige Chevy Cavaliers passed by during a six-hour road trip. If that makes him a genius, so be it.

If one spends the time reassembling the word jumble of your posts, it isn't difficult to see that 1) you have a number of issues and that 2) your IQ is about 140-150 points shy of that claimed 248.

And if I may comment?

Mark, if your self-proclaimed IQ is as you claim then you'd have long ago found a way to work around your atrocious grammar. Then too, you'd have probably worked your way up from that Technician License by now.
One must suspect, Mark, that your IQ is just about what the outside temps in Houghton County are. In the mid thirties at best.

Then one of your real problems is that you don't want to speak the truth, so you post gibberish.

I don't have any need to "disort" your words. You're doing a fine job

Don't flatter yourself. Before we can exchange "exchances" you are going to have to learn how to spell it. Perhaps then I'll stoop to your level.

Well, here is some real and factual news for you, Markie.
1. I am NOT Steve, though in your own world of idiocy you will not believe me.
2. I really, really cannot understand you. You make no sense.
3. I poke no fun at your alleged Dyslexia.
4. I poke fun at your sheer stupidity.
5. I poke fun at your inability to know when to shut up.

Mark...you have haunted these groups for so long that most folks (or,
"floks") have killfiled you. Does that tell you anything?

Oh, for Christ's sake, don't flatter yourself. Nobody hereabouts is afraid of anything you have to say. Most of it is second-grade gibberish anyway and your comments don't weigh in with any more weight than Roger Wiseman's filth. In short? Nobody cares!
Afraid of you? You have to be kidding! You cannot construct a cohesive sentence, much less have anything to offer that would put users of this group in fear of what you may say.
Oh, Hey! Let me remind you for the third time...I am NOT Steve.

It is all uphill for you.
No, I am not Steve. No, I am not Wiseman.
Steve is not an issue. Wiseman, however, is on the downhill slide and has shown his lack of intellect to rival yours.

And with such an idiotic claim, why doesn't Markie just acknowledge that he has a paranoia problem and seek help?

Classic, Markie...Just classic.

I know you're too stupid to see what you just wrote, but you just implicated yourself and your buddies "BB", "fnk" (I assume you meant disgraced ex-Marine Frankie of Silliland) and Lennie as liars.

WHEN will you EVER learn that your failure to grasp proper English comprehension and composition makes you look even MORE idiotic as the days go by...?!?!?

Forget it, Arf. Everything that is "wrong" in the world is "my" fault.

This is typical "victim" mode for Markie. He cannot, under any circumstances, envision ANYthing being "wrong" as a result of his own misdoings.

There was no "context" to be cut out of.

First of all Mr 248 IQ English Master, it wasn't a lie...It was a QUESTION.

And as offensive as I find it, he's probably right. You obviously DO have an obsessive-compulsive streak where I am involved, and it no doubt ultimately manifests in some sick, twisted desire to be physically intimate with me. I can only imagine what thoughts go

You've done nothing except quote a line from the Christian Bible.

You claimed that I was not following my OWN "moral code".

From what source did you obtain this "code", and how is it that you know I am not following it?

No, I do NOT 'know it".

From your obvious idiotic behaviour and lack of understanding of even the most basic foundations of certain matters of Amateur Radio, it's pretty apparent that your knowledge base is weak to say the least.

Yeah...I'd say being investigate for elder abuse is a "run in with the law".

Not being completely validated does not mean it was false...It means that there wasn't enough for them to proceed with.

At some point there was enough to make them ask the questions...

Nope...Any "elder" abuse charges you faced you faced from someone

Hey Jim...Sorry about that. My apologies, Sir!

However I think it would be far more easy and practical for us to invent "time travel", move to a day in the future when they've discovered how to "erase" a human mind and then completely re-program it. Perhaps then we could teach Markie how to read and write in English.

But then maybe not...

You're "streight"...?!?! "Streight" out of playing hooky from third grade English, it seems...

And I am sure you do like women...to model those latest styles you love to wear so much...

Well, first of all, here we have Markie in his obsessive-compulsive / paranoia mode vis-a-vis me again. No surprise there.

Then we have him telling us in a seemingly informed manner about where the underage chat rooms are.

Markie...HOW IS IT that YOU know about underage chat rooms in Yahoo...Or any OTHER forum for that matter...?!?!

Pardon the pun, but it's pretty apparent from YOUR comments that I wasn't "far off the mark" in the first place!

News/Markie:

Correct me if I am wrong, but:

A) the Tech exam is 35 multiple choice questions
B) anyone who knows the answers could complete it in 15-20 minutes
C) 5 and 6 year old children have passed the exam
D) IMO, anyone who ever took high school physics and spends 5 minutes reviewing the section on regulations has a decent chance to pass without any study
E) you do not need to take one of the many instructional classes, you can go right in to the exam
F) the exam is under $10
G) there are frequent VE sessions in many different places, sponsored by radio clubs, often connected with ham fest and flea markets
H) any legal workaround would be more difficult than just taking the test, documenting being educated in one of those professions
I) does it make sense to do something illegal with federal penalties, just to avoid taking a simple test that a child could pass?

Your posting and replies have taken you longer than studying for the test. But you would rather troll. Maybe it is better that you are not on the air.

Happy trails,

Good lord man! Pull the Corona beer bottle out of your ass and learn to read what you type! You obviously are one of those that never learned to touch type and stare at the keyboard as if someone moved the keys since you last attempted typing. For that problem, most use spell checkers.

Steve, you can stop lying at any time.

You can also stop gleefully diving into the gutter at the slightest opportunity (i.e., pasty), and making horrific comments such as "Raped an old friend."

You >choose< to behave badly. At least I think you do. It is possible that you just can't help yourself, in which case you need professional help.

Which is it? Do you choose to behave badly or can't you help yourself?

1866. K1MAN/IARN/AARA TO W5JBP: "IF YOU CAN'T TAKE THE HEAT, GET OUT

ARRL PRESIDENT QUITS - "IF YOU CAN'T TAKE THE HEAT, GET OUT OF THE KITCHEN" SAYS K1MAN

Quoting President Harry Truman, Glenn Baxter, Executive Director of AARA,
the American Amateur Radio Associaation, bids Jim Haynie "Good Luck in The Contest." According to this week's ARRL Letter:

"The election of a new ARRL president will highlight the annual meeting of
the ARRL Board of Directors. When the Board convenes Friday and Saturday, January 20 and 21, in Windsor, Connecticut, Jim Haynie, W5JBP, will wield
the gavel for the last time as the League's president. Haynie, who lives in Dallas, Texas, has made it known over the past few months that he will not be a candidate for a fourth two-year term. He says that while it's been a great honor to serve as the ARRL's president for the past six years, he feels it's time for him to step aside.

"It's a time-consuming job. It tends to wear on you after a while," Haynie
conceded this week. "I've racked up hundreds of thousands of miles traveling--not only here in the United States but all over the world representing the ARRL and Amateur Radio."

Haynie says he's thoroughly enjoyed his tenure in the League's top office--a strictly volunteer position--but he believes someone with fresh ideas and a different vision from his now should take over the reins. The ARRL Board
customarily elects a president from among its own ranks or elevates one
of
the League's vice presidents, although it's not required to. When he was elected, Haynie was the ARRL West Gulf Division Director.

Among the successes of his six years as ARRL president, Haynie cites the

ARRL Education and Technology Program--often better known as "The Big Project." Haynie kicked off the initiative to put Amateur Radio stations and a curriculum into schools across the US shortly after he took office in 2000. The program now boasts upward of 180 participating schools.

He says he's also proud that he's been able to contribute to enhancing the visibility of Amateur Radio at the FCC, in "official Washington" and on Capitol Hill. "I enjoyed that work," said Haynie, who testified before the House Subcommittee on Telecommunications and the Internet on behalf of the Spectrum Protection Act in 2003. Last year, he submitted written testimony to the House Government Reform Committee on the successful efforts of Amateur Radio operators who provided communications during the Hurricane Katrina response.

"It's paid off in the long run," Haynie said of his regular visits to Washington to advance Amateur Radio's agenda. "Amateur Radio needs to learn how to sell itself, not just from the League's standpoint," he said. "The president can only do so much." He encouraged all radio amateurs, whether or not they're ARRL members, to promote Amateur Radio and its value to the community.

Once he steps down, Haynie says he's looking forward to "maybe chasing some DX or maybe running a few contests." But he says he'll also make himself available to the Board to handle any necessary duty.

Among other items on its agenda, the ARRL Board is expected to discuss the process of developing effective band plans to support rule changes the League recently requested in a Petition for Rule Making RM-11306. The petition asks the FCC to regulate the amateur bands by necessary bandwidth rather than by mode. The Commission will accept public comments on the petition until February 6.

The Board also plans to review and discuss Article 11 of its Articles of Association, which defines eligibility to hold League office. It also will hear reports from officers and consider recommendations from various committees."

FCC TO OFFER K1MAN CALL FOR SALE AT STARTING BIDS 0F $1,000,000? JAIL TIME FOR FCC "SPECIAL COUNSEL" RILEY HOLLINGSWORTH?

See AARA NEWS

>From ARRL web site:

FCC zips through vanity application backlog (Jan 12, 2006) -- Once the FCC resumed processing Amateur Radio vanity call sign applications earlier this month, its Wireless Telecommunications Bureau (WTB) blazed through the backlog. A total of 990 vanity applications piled up in the queue after the FCC suspended vanity processing September 23. An initial batch of 121 grants Friday, January 6, was followed by 195 more the next day. Apparently confident by then that the system was working okay, the FCC let loose the remaining 674 vanity grants Tuesday, January 10. During the vanity hiatus, applications appeared with a "Y--application has problems" flag in the Universal Licensing System (ULS), prompting some concern on the part of those who checked their applications' status. The WTB reportedly applied the "Y" status to prevent the system from running the entire backlog at once. The WTB halted vanity processing last fall after realizing that filing deadline extensions for licensees in certain states affected by hurricanes Katrina and Rita applied to Amateur Radio's two-year "grace period" and could impact the vanity system. FCC spokesman Tracy Simmons told ARRL today that the WTB now is processing current vanity call sign receipts. It typically takes approximately three weeks from the time a vanity application is submitted until a call sign is issued.--some information from Fred Maia, W5YI

A soicopath? Really? You've already encountered a real sociopath in the guise of Whinyslit Llloyd, Roger Wiseman.

Steve likes wearing food. His preference is egg.

It's a carryover from his youth, and he still acts like a two year old most of the time.

Steve doesn't quite have command of the english language, but is always out in front telling others how to spell.

Did you see him try to say that I misled him into thinking dirty thoughts and posting despicable claims? It's everybody else's fault.

but none of it adds up He was thrown out but not for disipline not on a mental and nothing physcial

he has tolld all these tales

he has spoken too much not too little

he is now afraid to sayanything, and he should be he has said to maany a and not a stories to explain his way out except by admitting to a lie and steve the sociopath that he clealry is would rather die than do that

To quote from Fawlty Towers, "not you, Manuel".

The prefix "con" means "with". Hence, posting "consense" means posting "with sense". I understand your confusion in a matter dealing with words.

People don't have the "right" to what? They don't have the "right" to a nurse who knows everything about homosexuals and transvestites? Get a life.

it certainly is important treating a patinet with digniaty is a requirement of Steves job indeed it specifies that gay lesbian trans gnedered pataint must be treated with respect if stev can't accurrately tell them apart how can he do that

I know from your remarks you don't believ that people with alternitive sexuality have any rights. you hae made that quite clear, but the law

I'm sure that'll become an issue if Tennessee ever gets a gay-lesbian-transgnedered pataint. Maybe you can start a crusade to have Tennessee nurse go through sensitivity training. It might be simpler to have the nurses ask each "pataint" if they are homosexual, bisexual, transgendered or transvestites. After all, it'd be very confusing to have someone wearing makeup and women's clothing complain of pain in parts she isn't supposed to have. I'd love to know where the regs which specify treatment of homosexual, transgendered and transvestites can be found.

Alternative sexuality? Is that like asking if I have a smoking

WTF are you messing with this idiot for Randy? If the stupid SOB doesn't know how to spell, let alone use a spell check, don't bother. I kill filled him long ago, just because of his spelling. it was giving me a headache..

Sorry, Einstein, it doesn't work that way.

There is often no option. You sometimes hose up 30-50% of the words you attempt to use. Couple that with the lack of punctuation, capitalization and an inability to properly use grammar and it is no wonder at all that people are left to guess at what you mean to communicate. We've all read your view that using a spell/grammar checker is not worth your valuable time. That, of course depends upon your desire to communicate. If all you're doing is prattling, it doesn't matter.

No, I suppose you have more problems than one person can typically handle as things stand.

No one here, with the exception of the just-plain-creepy Roger Wiseman has violated "the rules of the net" more than you. What violation of your privacy has taken place? Are you babbling about the perverse personals post which you made to another Usenet newsgroup? Sorry, Colonel, you have no expectation of privacy there. Everything which is known about you here, is known from public information. If you didn't want it known that you like to play a good game of beat-me-spank-me-pee-on-me, you probably shouldn't have advertised for it.

I've not verified any such thing. You can't be too careful with Mark.
You make an educated guess or two and he comes up with something entirely different. He's on a crusade to prove that he's a one-man version of the hundred monkeys with typewriters scenario. One of these days, he's going to type something brilliant.

I don't think you've quite gotten the hang of it. The "con" prefix means "with". There was no "con" prefix when I used the word "sense".
Note the use of the word "no" in front of "sense".

Your version would be "without with sense"--and such a statement certainly would be.

That's odd. For a guy who isn't going to be controlled, you certainly seem to have gotten in the spirit of things. It'd be nice if you didn't attempt to tell me what Brian is doing. You'll likely just hose things up.

Now it's just "god"...Yesterday it was "the gods"...You can't even keep an even keel with your spiritual beliefs, Markie.

Unfortunately you have not come to the realization that the ignorance that you have to deal with is not here on RRAP, but staring

Nope. I followed the attributes just fine. The "gag" was yours.

Why do you persist in lying when Google archives prove differently?

No, I do not "always" claim you're drunk...That's only when you ARE drunk. it's apparent in your postings.

Markie's Subject line said:

"Re: an outside assement of Steve by someone that know him

Markie is challenged to prove wherein the person who wrote the below (yet another anonymous poster with no facts at all....) "know(s) (me) personaly"

There is, of course, NO such suggestion.

Just another windy diatribe by someone who likes to talk big but doesn't ahve the cajones to identify herself.

"Robeson is the worst type of American"

Actually, the peson who wrote those words is the "worst type of American". She is the kind that cowers behind the Constitution of the United States, insisting that it's promises of "freedom of speech" also means you can hurl epithets from behind that very same document without consequence.

Such barbs are meaningless from a coward who won't put a name to the comments.

Markie, there's no way that YOU could stand going toe-to-toe with ANYone in this forum, let alone me. Not on line, not in person, not on this Earth.

Unlike YOU, Markie, I have other things to do, and they often mean not sticking around to see what re-hashing of "stupid" you can manifest
THIS time!

Danged if I know why you're an idiot, Markie, but I am sure that ineffective parenting, an apathetic public education systrem, and drug/alcohol abuse have a lot to do with it.

I notice with evermore growing concern that you, Brian P Burke, a person known to be entrusted with the care and safety of other people's children from time to time (scoutmaster) , spend a great deal of time in this forum "defending" known liars, cheats, deceivers, sexual perverts and other persons for whom the average prudent parent would not want their child exposed to.

Why do I bring this up...?!?!?

Because it "suits you"....

But considering who and what the two of you are, that doesn't lend much credence to the act.

Nice try, Markie. A dictionary would have been better, though.

No one said it was nothing, but these arguments about the protection of our allocations have been going on for DECADES now yet there is is relief.

The Spectrum Protection Act or some other legislation sounding like it has been in committee ump-teen times now, Markie...How many times have YOU written your representitives (in English) demanding that they pass it?

Sure he did. That you don't understand them or can't read them is not relevent.

What's "lectureing" about it, Markie...!??!

It's a stone-cold fact.

The 220-225Mhz band wound up in North American Amateur's hands for the most part as a buffer between commercial users and the Armed Forces "band" from 225Mhz to 400Mhz (among other reasons). It was never meant to be an unrevokable allocation...(Not that any are...) That we've kept it this long has been nothing short of a miracle.

Considering who you were replying to, Jim, was this question really necessary...!??!

Ooopss...Two disqualifiers there, Jim..."significant" and "relevant".

Makes sense. (Oooops...a third disqualifier...)

Brain must have some of his bloodline north of the border...Or his head south of his umbilicus....

> We lost 220-222 about 15 years ago. Hardly proof of your claim.

It was on it's way out the door in the mid 70's when there was a move against it for "Class E" CB. Other ideas won the day, but it was hardly the "overwhelming response" from the Amateur community that was ultimately responsible.

> Canada has universal health care - USA doesn't.

The seams of that system are starting to let loose. The holes in some of their "safety net" make the one's in ours look microscopic in cases...At the end of the day, I am glad I work in a US ER.

But in this case, with 90% of it's industry and end-users of the radio spectrum within a couple hours drive of a US border, it made sense.

You should see the floor of his room at the halfway house he stays at, lots of carpet bombing of feces where Marky didn't make it to the bathroom quick enough. At least that's what the scuttle butt is around.

why should I?

you confessed to lying

you confessed again

indeed by your "logic I can claim accurately accrding to you that I have never lied since I have confessed to lying so then you have lied everytime you have called me a liar since that confess or maybe a couple of thousand lies

I do ok I am getting to like 2m SSB more consitant than 6m SSB and queiter to operate

oTOH 222 is even quieter but few people on and 440 sssb i can leave on all day and still satnd the static but still make some contact even a bit on 1.2 g

all nice bands the range kida suck but range is being worked on by the FCC

well here we are on day 23 (insert steve acusation fo paranois her)
and no service

on day 12 steve claimed that he had promised that he would file within 10 days his suit, if that clock started on the locial date 27 dec 2005 (day 0 of this count) then he would have had to file by now and I would have had to be served by now thathe later would be a matter of law

however assuming that he mean he would filed withon 10 days of the that date (day 12) then he would hae had to file by yesterday (being generous since the coutrhouse was closed yesterday) today meaning If I am served by day 33 even that generous undderstanding wil be proved a lie

any filing at al of coutrse will prove that steve lied when he stated that if I stoped using his daughters name he would not sue me, that pormised was pull out of the more than 200 more markie mularkies post and titled steve comits public fraud, or word to that effect

HOW TO SLAP SISSY KEYCLOWNS IN THE WALLET WHEN THEY TRY SELLING THEIR ILLEGAL GARBAGE ON EBAY!

Log into ebay as you normally would and get ready to browse for illegal keyclown items! Keep the illegal keyclown equipment auction numbers you find in a text file.

Open a second browser and log on again. This time, use it to do the following:

Surf on over to http://pages.ebay.com/securitycenter/index.html
1. select "Report another problem"
2. click "Report problem"

This will take you to a page with 3 windows:
1. In the top window, select:"report a listing policy violation or prohibited (banned) item"
2. In middle window, select "Prohibited (banned) items"
3. In bottom window, select "electronics"
4. click "continue"

Now you will be on the "Contact us" page. Click on "email".

This will take you to a page to email Ebay security about the illegal keyclown equipment you find.
1. Type in the number of the auction that you want to rat out. You can type in up to 10 auctions, so cruise around your favorite place on Ebay to find illegal keyclown equipment and fill the box up! Type in the numbers like this: 000000000,00000001,000000002, etc. No gaps between the commas and the next number.
2. Before hitting the "send" button, make sure to copy/paste your ratouts to a text file. You want to save them so you can post them in the rec.radio.cb newsgroup. This is a public service to the legal CB'ers, who want all this keyclown gear eradicated. It also has a great side effect of getting keyclowns to squeal, call you names, and otherwise complain. They hate it when they get their clocks cleaned like this.
3. Now, you are ready to do your duty as a ham or a CB'er, and show that you are not a keyclown operator like they are. Click "send"!

Repeat as many times for as many days as you want, keep those keyclowns whining like the sissies they are!

Apparently not. You've thrown down that ultimatum once too often. Now it's being thrown back.

> Can YOU remember what YOU say?

Yep, pretty much. Even if I don't remember exactly what I might have said, I don't lie. And by not lying, I don't have to remember exaclty which lie was told, which is what trips you up so often.

LMAO!! Yeah, it does, but you could tell that Geo was way more educated than this moron. I swear, I couldn't have cared less about what he was talking about, but his spelling is absolutely horrendous.

Next time I'm passing through on business, I'll let you you have a credit card with the name of Tom "Somethingorother").

I wouldn't call any post made about you buying a dress a lie...Just bad taste.

You're definitealy a slacks or full length colloutes kinda guy...Fat people like you have no business in a dress. Capri's would be really pushing your luck.

So you're saying it WAS illegible to you?

Because I can read it just fine.

YOU suggested I take orders from "Dr K". Well, That's what we call her..."Dr. K"...

Nothing was ducked.

But you DO look pretty stupid trying to suggest otherwise.

Lessee....

We have you archived lying about others lying.

We have you lying about your lying, then lying to cover it up.

We have you admitting that you lie, and suggesting it's a good thing to teach to children.

We have you lying about others making threats against you.

We have you MAKING threats against others then lying to cover those up.

You're an admitted pervert.

You're an admitted mental health patient.

Now you're AGAIN wishing physical harm on another.

Markie, seems to ME that YOU are the one needing the One-Way to Oregon Special on AMTRAK. I'll chip in if you're short on cash. I'll just file a claim with your estate later.

QUOTE FROM THE ARRL WEBSITE:

Authorities warn of Randy McCloy, KC8VKZ, e-mail hoax (Jan 17, 2006) -- According to "The Checkout" column of The Washington Post, federal and state authorities are warning consumers about a bogus e-mail seeking donations to aid Sago Mine disaster survivor Randy McCloy, KC8VKZ, of Simpson, West Virginia.

"The Checkout" reports that e-mails claiming to be from Dr Lawrence Roberts, McCloy's primary physician, describe the 26-year-old miner's condition and seek monetary donations for his treatment. "The Checkout" editor Caroline Mayer advises those who have received such e-mails to consider contacting the Internet Crime Complaint Center.

McCloy reportedly is eligible for immediate medical and wage-replacement benefits as well as for workers compensation benefits based on the extent of his injuries. Over the weekend, McCloy's condition was upgraded from critical to serious, but he remains in intensive care in West Virginia University's Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown.

Although still sedated, McCloy's heart and liver functions reportedly have improved, his muscle deterioration has abated, his neurological condition is stable and he's been breathing on his own. He remains in intensive care with other serious medical issues, however, including impaired kidney function.

The January 3 mining disaster claimed the lives of a dozen of McCloy's co-workers.

OK Mark: I'm going to give you what you want and publicly apologize for whatever you think I've done. Let's let bygones be bygones, and let's declare a truce between the two of us so that the rest of the newsgroup doesn't continue to suffer. I'm sure that Dave will become part of the truce if you will simply agree to stop, but Dave has to speak for himself of course.

If you will keep your attack posts off the newsgroups, I will agree to observe a truce from my end, even though you are basically a goddamned, mother fucking, retarded, lunatic faggot idiot.

Deal?

No, Lardass, you run your mouth about showing up at hamfests and never show. You hide behind your front door to that filthy HUD apartment when other hams come calling at your door and whine "leave me alone. You don't have the courage to hang out or around at anything but those public restrooms where you give blowjobs.

Lardass, the bed would have to be fucking 5 feet up in the air to let you underneath a bed, you fat tub of shit.

first you must realize by putting this at the end you days post anumber onfmy posts are already on there way you may rtielt them something netral if you wish to reply as I wil do wit the malrkie posts

I will restore al the thread name as I see fit to the rest

but we must of ofcourse define what you are offering

You will stop bringing up mine or antone sexualiy

you will refrain from name calling esp sexual taunts accsation fo intoxcation or othe misdeed

you may if you insist correct my spelling but remarks from there are seen as attacks

you will stop making demands I use a spellchecker

you will refarin from making threats to "take stuff offline" you need to clify wether you are still threateningto sue me one way or the other

I am not bound by any restrsaint in repling to annies mouses or dave should he refuse to comply but you will not interfere between me and the annies

with such terms as I added to claefiy your offer I accept

Stve have covered in google the post sent out today thabefore reading your apology I think since my usenet zone stacks them up nd dishes them out slowly I may have missed a couple, my apologies for that but you should be able to deal with them as I have

there are 2 truce but threads with exaand acact example

one no thvague threats

2 you must adress my wife gf as female wether you belive it or not

You break this this truce at and I will respond withan even greater effort I trust even you realize that I will also mention I am not responible for BB frank lenn etc you may try to offer terms for my particaption in such threads, I promises to consider your requests

I may choose to warn about what I see as truce violations on your part or i may simply declare jihad as I see fit

Sorry, it is NOT "more individual." Amateur radio callsigns can be re-issued to others after a former license holder passes away.
[the FCC granteth, the FCC taketh away]

Example: W1HR was the callsign of Jim Fisk, founding editor of Ham Radio Magazine, now a club callsign (honoring his name).
W7DI, former callsign of SK Eugene Hubbell (W9ERU in Illinois), is now a club call. Gene was a 55 WPM morseman by several tests of morsemanship.

> There's only one N0IMD, however I know a >half dozen "Brian's"

Incorrect use of the apostrophe indicating a POSSESSIVE.
PLURALITIES are expressed with the simple addition of an
S at the end, NO apostrophe.

> And MARS does not exist without Amateur Radio.

The Military AFFILIATE Radio System exists, and was created FOR the military (originally by the Army). MARS does NOT operate IN amateur radio bands. MARS callsigns are different than civilian radio amateur's callsigns.

>Don't know why you brought that in, but there ya go.

Quite possibly because YOU FAILED to acknowledge that the Department of Defense DIRECTIVE that establishes the MILITARY Affiliate Radio System?

>We don't call ya "Brain" for nothing!

Are your separate personalities counting themselves as a "group" so that you can wave your "we-we" again?

I call Brian Burke Brian. So do others in here.

When YOU present some actual proof of your 18-year "active duty time in the USMC" "we" may stop calling you "Dudly" (after the fake air carrier pilot mentioned by pseudonym in Ernest K. Gann's autobiograpical book "Fate is the Hunter").

One thing "we" will never do is call you "brain" for all the mistakes you've made in the past seven-plus years.
An imaginative ego (even if encased in a ferret shell)
will never be considered "brainy."

Poseurs DO have that problem..."tripping the light fantastic"
all the time.

"Sorry, Hans, MARS >>IS<< amateur radio!" :-)

Even more basic than that, though, is Dudly's FAILURE to produce ONE item, documentary or from anyone else, of his vaunted "active military service in the USMC."

Frank Gilliland has shown Dud to be a true poseur (fake, impersonator) on the Marine jargon, units, etc., and I've verified that with some former Marines that I know (at least one of which agrees that Major Dud is a total fake). Dud can't come up with a single document, snapshot, or anything else after his claimed "18 year active duty time."

As to "working in Marine avionics," Dud has NEVER mentioned a single nomenclature or familiar name of ANY piece of avionics equipment used on USMC helos or any other aircraft. That's an unheard of thing with those who've been IN ACTUAL work on those aircraft. When Dudly tried to talk about crypto equipment, he got that wrong and refused to acknowledge that Hans had the correct names showing Dudly his duds in print. The best that Dud could do was try to name some "MARS radio gear" (probably after his oh-so-important task as "assistant NCOIC" of some MARS station).

>> > > But nice try, though!

>Really? So why did you post "Raped an old friend?"

Dudly thinks rape is "cool?" :-(

Rape is a four-letter word and should be treated as such.

But, that is par for Dudly's course as an extra class radio amateur showing everyone the "good side" of amateur radio. <shrug>

Dudly just doesn't give a damn WHAT he writes, scribbles, blabbers in here...just as long as he can vent his frustrations of his everyday life on everyone else, cuss them out, call them names, etc.

Dudly is just incapable of accepting anything negative to whatever he wrote. Anyone who does so gets called a "LIAR" and worse. It is endemic. It has turned this forum into a pandemic of personal invective trading, well away from any

"policy discussions."

Right now there are two Petitions up before the public at the FCC (RM-11305 and RM-11306) on a reorganization of U.S. amateur radio frequency allocations. Dudly hasn't been able to post on those matters, yet at least 320+ others have made their comments known on those matters at the FCC.

The best that Dud can come up with is promotion of internecine word warfare on the Industry Canada reallocation of THEIR "220" MHz band (to following the U.S. allocations). NOT a direct matter of policy for U.S. amateurs.

In short, Dudly is just a COWARD in not being able to present ANY verification of his alleged military service with the USMC, nor of ANY statement of familiarity with USMC avionics, nor of being even a human being instead of a sociopathic syndrome-symbol of what is WRONG with U.S. radio amateurs.

So...Leo, what's the word from Canadian amateur radio on the IC reallocation of "220?"

[not that it matters directly to me, but such an actual subject of discussion would be preferable to the sniping and general name-calling on personalities in here...where every day is Boxing Day...in the literal sense of the word]

By the way, a good example of "220" in operation is the Condor Net covering most of the length of California and reaching into states of Nevada and Arizona. Over two decades of operation and begun before repeater micro-processor control was the common thing in repeater control.

During a visit to the mental asylum, Mark asked the Director what the criterion was which defined whether or not a patient should be institutionalized.

"Well," said the Director, "we fill up a bathtub, then we offer a teaspoon, a teacup and a bucket to the patient and ask him or her to empty the bathtub."

"Oh, I understand," said Mark. "A normal person would use the bucket because it's bigger than the spoon or the teacup.

"No." said the Director, "A normal person would pull the plug. Do you want a bed near the window?"

Obviously NOT, judging by trotting out that old sway-backed "involvement" nonsense. Amateurism is NOT a closed community. There are only the close-minded individuals in amateur radio who imagine themselves gods of radio.

Listen UP, David.

One does NOT have to be "involved" through federal licensing to discuss either radio, licensing, or license testing for amateur radio.

The FCC does NOT require any staffer or commissioner to have been granted any amateur radio license in order to MAKE amateur radio regulations OR regulated its use.

DISCUSSION of radio regulations is NOT the sole purview of those already licensed...nor are those not licensed in the amateur radio service "forbidden" to speak about it. Kindly DROP your repeated nonsense of control-freakism about "who can discuss what where" in regards to amateur radio.

I've been VERY much "involved" with radio for just about 53 years now. Radio. Communications radio. At the professional level, not in some "clubhouse" idea of some backyard amateurs sitting around thinking they were God's Gift to the radio world because they have been granted a federal license to be "hams."

When the FCC issues a Memorandum Report and Order stating that ONLY already-licensed radio amateurs are to talk with them about federal regulations, then and ONLY THEN can you have your "wish" of "involvement."

Until then, I just say "Phhfffttttt" to your controlling attempts.

No, Mark, it is NOT "Dudly Do-Right" from the cartoon character
(although there IS a cartoonish behavior that Robeson affects).

I explained the "Dudly" name between September 1 and 3, 2005, and you will find that under the thread nominally called
"Laying Waste to Frankie of Silliland."

Ernest K. Gann was a prolific author as well as a long-time air carrier pilot ("airlines pilot") and his novels have been made into at least four major motion pictures. Gann used a pseudonym of "Dudley" for the #3 seniority-rating pilot hired on at Matson Airlines...who had NEVER achieved either a commercial pilot's license or a multi-engine rating (essential for 4-engine passenger air carriers of the time).
Gann's "Dudley" FAKED his way into the airline (!), taking advantage of this start-up of the Matson ship passenger line right after WW2 not being that fussy about checking credentials. When discovered, "Dudley" was fired. However, the real "Dudley" talked his way onto another start-up airline and subsequently killed himself and his passengers in an aircraft crash at that airline. Through ineptitude in flying skills which he had tried to fake as well...

You can find references to the book "Fate Is The Hunter" on an Internet search, using either that title or "Ernest K.
Gann" as search words. Gann died in 1991 on San Juan Island (his home) in the Puget Sound region of Washington. "Fate Is
The Hunter" was made into a so-so motion picture starring Glenn Ford. The book and its tales are much better reading.

I picked "Dudly" as the pseudonym because that is what Robeson has done in here...largely FAKING his way through, posing as "knowledgeable" when he doesn't know jack about radio. Neither is Dudly multi-engine rated nor can he be "pilot in command" of a single-engine general aviation aircraft. [he tried to impress others of his "pilot in command" "title" in messages posted in here]

I didn't write of "amateurism", Len. I wrote of amateur radio. Amateur radio is most assuredly a closed community in that only those who have passed licensing exams may participate. You have not done so and you may not participate.

Your claim of decades of interest in amateur radio is itself nearly a decade old. You still hold no amateur radio license of any class.

> There are only the close-minded individuals in > amateur radio who imagine themselves gods of radio.

I don't know a single soul who imagines himself a god of radio. I know that you've, at various times, imagined me to be a god of radio. On other occasions, you've told me that I'm no radio god. You seemed to have difficulty in making up your mind. Well, one thing is certain. You're no radio amateur.

> Listen UP, David.

Don't attempt at giving orders here, Leonard.

> One does NOT have to be "involved" through federal licensing

You have discussed (but mostly pontificated) here for many years. You're no closer to obtaining an amateur radio license today than you were when you began posting to r.r.a.p. Your viewpoint that of an individual who has not participated, but rather as one who is an onlooker, a bystander.

> The FCC does NOT require any staffer or commissioner to

That'll be relevant when you are appointed to or hired by the Commission.

> DISCUSSION of radio regulations is NOT the sole purview of

Who has forbidden you to speak? When you speak, you speak as one with limited knowledge of the topic. You aren't the already licensed. You aren't the soon to be licensed. You're as far along the licensing trail as your ever likely to venture.

> Kindly
> DROP your repeated nonsense of control-freakism about "who

Thanks for the advice. I'll do that about the time you stop your pontificating and condescension. In other words, I won't have to worry about it in this lifetime.

> I've been VERY much "involved" with radio for just about
> 53 years now. Radio. Communications radio.

We all know about that. It isn't amateur radio. I didn't write "radio". I wrote "amateur radio". You're on the outside and you've never been on the inside. Amateur radio.

> At the
> professional level, not in some "clubhouse" idea of some

There's the condescension. Radio amateurs are granted a federal license to be hams. You haven't got one.

> When the FCC issues a Memorandum Report and Order stating Talk with them 'til you're blue in the face. Add footnotes to your lengthy submissions. Submitting comments to the FCC is not participation in amateur radio. You're still a sidewalk superintendent.

Sorry, Lennie.

A LIE on your part.

I've produced NUMEROUS references to verifyable third-party sources of my service.

All of which points to YOU lying about it.

That's why I can say "Leonard H Anderson is a know liar and
deceiver" in a public forum and not have to worry about getting sued.

Frankie's done nothing except try to bark loud and hope no one notices that he's just a shivvering little lap dog without the resources to live up to his bark.

Frankie is himself a disgraced EX-Marine, one that couldn't even make it through ONE tour of duty without getting into more trouble than some Marines do in a whole career.

And that's why I can say Frank Gilliland is a liar and deceiver in a public forum and not be concerned about law suits either. He'd never be able to demonstrate otherwise.

Why?

Unless you care to discuss the CONVERSION of those devices to Amateur use, there's not a bit of need to do so.

I COULD run off at the mouth ala-Lennie with nomenclatures,
manfacturers, etc, but it means nothing.

That YOU think that such repetitive ramblings "prove" something is false. It just shows you can quote well.

Got WHAT wrong?

"...of some MARS station".

Well, there you go with half-baked "quotes" and innuendo as if you'd not been given the details before...Or as if all of the information isn;t on my QRZ "Bio" under K4YZ...Again, all information that can be verified and corroborated by the authorizing agencies.

You lead the way, Lennie!

And Lennie...

A person is not a liar unless they are NOT telling the truth.

YOU have been found NOT telling the truth on occassions far too numerous to count.

That didn't mean a thing, Mark. I have no idea of what you are trying to say. I am not sure what "Google" post you are refering to.
Your offer of an apology duly noted, but I SINCERELY have no idea what you're talking about.

> there are 2 truce but threads with exaand acact example

I get the idea that you want to call a truce. OK...

> one no thvague threats

No what threats?

> 2 you must adress my wife gf as female wether you belive it or not

I have no intention of addressing your "wife" as anything, Mark.
First of all, we have no evidence that you're even married. Indeed, in just the last 24 hours YOU have even left us very noticible "evidence" that this person is not even married to you having called her your "girlfriend". That's YOUR terminology since I never called "her" that.

If for any reason you feel compelled to discuss your "partner", may I suggest the term "significant other" [abbreviated 's/o']..?!?!
That covers most bases, is socially and legally recognized and is universally accepted as the genderless, politically correct terminology for one's intimate partner regardless of marital status.

> You break this this truce at and I will respond withan even greater > effort I trust even you realize that

You mean that you can screw up RRAP with even more trash, profanites, and other acts of silliness than what has recently transpired? Say it isn't so!

Hot flash, Mark...RRAP is not my "property", and in "trashing" it like you just did, you only further damage YOUR own reputation and tick-off everyone else. I just sit back and laugh.

If you want to "cool it off", then you do so because it's the right thing to do. No other reason.

> I will also mention I am not responible for BB frank lenn etc you may > try to offer terms for my particaption in such threads, I promises to > consider your requests

Again, I am not even remotely sure what you're trying to say here.

And I don't set "terms" for your "particaption" in ANY thread. If you have something you think's constructive to offer, say it.

> I may choose to warn about what I see as truce violations on your part > or i may simply declare jihad as I see fit Declare whatever you care to declare, Mark. It's no skin off my nose. You will either choose to act responsibly and maturely, or you won't.

I might point out that you are more likely to being even more negative attention to yourself by suggesting such things as "declar(ing) jihad"...You set yourself up as the bad guy regardless of your "righteousness".

> i do ask the coutesy that you try to keep your posting volume down for > the next 36 hr as I have blown the google limits on 2 acount doing this

You didn't need to "blow" anything. One post with a responsible subject line was all that was needed.

> just as coutesy not a demand

Good call on your part. I'll take it under advisement.

Now here's some points for YOU to take under consideration or advisement:

(1) Not every statement that YOU don't agree with or find inconsistent with your views is a "lie". When you immeidately respond with some version of a word indicating you believe the person is being mistruthful, YOU set the tone for all follow-on exchanges.

BTW: Remember the first posts we ever exchanged? YOU asked what right did the FCC have making certain rules, suggesting that only Congress could do those things. I responded that Congress extended it's powers for regulatory control of the airwaves to the FCC in the Communications Act of 1934. This is a fact. Your very next response was to call me a "lier". The fight was on from then on.

(2) Copious profanity is the sign of a weak mind. Use it s you will, but then don't get P/O'ed for always being called on it.

(3) There is no massive conspiracy or covert program in or out of Amateur Radio to deny you of any rights or privileges.

(4) That you may have some physical or neurological impediment that makes it more difficult for you to do the same things that others find "easy" does not rate you a "free pass". There are far too many "disabled" people out there who have done exactly what you claim to be "impossible" for you to continue any suggestion of insurmountable effort.

(5) If you ask for someone's help in some matter, accept the information as it's offered. If you have some specific need or need your question answered at a specific level, then specify those needs or levels. If you don't understand the information provided, just say so and folks will be glad to help you.

So...Let's see how you do for the 36 hours you asked for. I'm game.

These are the numbers of current, unexpired amateur radio licenses held by individuals on the stated dates, and the percentage of the total number of active licenses that class contains:

As of May 14, 2000:

Novice - 49,329 (7.3%)
Technician - 205,394 (30.4%)
Technician Plus - 128,860 (19.1%)
General - 112,677 (16.7%)
Advanced - 99,782 (14.8%)
Extra - 78,750 (11.7%)

Total Tech/TechPlus - 334,254 (49.5%)

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 291,209 (43.2%)

Total all classes - 674,792

As of January 15, 2006:

Novice - 26,669 (4.0%) [decrease of 22,660]
Technician - 275,157 (41.6%) [increase of 69,763] Technician Plus - 43,507 (6.6%) [decrease of 85,353]
General - 135,013 (20.4%) [increase of 22,336]
Advanced - 74,159 (11.2%) [decrease of 25,623]
Extra - 107,469 (16.2%) [increase of 28,719]

Total Tech/TechPlus - 318,664 (48.1%) [decrease of 15,590]

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 316,641 (47.8%) [increase of 25,432]

Total all classes - 661,974 (decrease of 12,818)

Note that these totals do not include licenses that have expired but are in the grace period.

They also do not include club, military, RACES or other station-only licenses.

Note also that effective April 15, 2000, new Novice, Technician Plus and Advanced licenses are no longer issued.

Since April 15, 2000, FCC has renewed all existing Technician Plus licenses as Technician. It is therefore informative to consider the totals of the two classes, since the Technician class includes a significant number of Technician Plus licenses renewed as Technician.

That's what you've posted alright. I'm sure that you can quote an applicable regulation which permits operation of an amateur radio station by unlicensed persons.

I show my colors every single time I post. So, might I add, do you.

How is my statement that Leonard Anderson is not a participant in amateur radio a restriction? He has the same opportunity as anyone else to obtain a license. He is prevented from doing so only by inertia.

Tsk, tsk, tsk, trying to perpetuate your own LIE by calling others "liars?" :-)

1. Not a single DD-214 copy anywhere of yours to be seen.

2. Not a single military document copy of yours to be seen.

3. Not a single individual's reference to attest to your having been on active USMC duty at any time during your claimed 18-year active duty.

4. Not a single photograph, snapshot, or other memento of yours to be seen from your "18-year USMC active duty."

5. Not a single newspaper or other periodical copy to state of your having entered the USMC, left the USMC, or even served in any capacity on active duty to be seen.

6. Your constant use of wrong terms and jargon in use by the USMC is indicative of NOT being ON active duty.

7. Your failure to know of ANY USMC avionics equipment by either nomenclature or familiar name is indicative of NOT being involved with such electronic equipment.

> All of which points to YOU lying about it.

No "lie" if there is nothing at all to attest to your USMC service visible to others. All we have is YOUR claims to the fact.

> That's why I can say "Leonard H Anderson is a know liar and
>deceiver" in a public forum and not have to worry about getting sued.

Is there some civil suit upcoming involving you? :-)

I don't "LIE" in a public forum such as this. I've given enough references on my military service and my (much-longer) civilian career in radio-electronics...including several personal references who are licensed radio amateurs, one of which served with me in the same Army unit at the same time. The Pacific edition of the Stars and Stripes military newspaper carried my interview on Hardy Barracks in Tokyo in the 50s, including my own photos of that time. [one of those in one photo was Stan Peschel, died about a year ago according to industry association news]

> Frankie's done nothing except try to bark loud and hope no one
>notices that he's just a shivvering little lap dog without the Tsk, tsk, tsk...looking in your own mirror again? :-)

Frank Gilliland has provided several references, mostly photos of his USMC service time (good ones), including a digitization of a telephone coin used in a foreign country...something that would be familiar to anyone using the same sort of coin. The part of his DD-214 is certainly a reference, something which you do NOT have visible to anyone.

Frank has "told it like it is" in detail, regardless of the situations he found himself in and makes no moral judgement on anyone else. You, on the other hand, have yet to PROVE you've actually been on active USMC duty in any way.

> And that's why I can say Frank Gilliland is a liar and deceiver in

>be able to demonstrate otherwise.

"Dudly's done nothing except try to bark loud and hope no one notices that he's just a shivvering little lap dog without the resources to live up to his bark."

Tsk, tsk, all that "law suit" talk again! :-)

Seems to everyone else that Frank Gilliland can certainly prove HIS USMC service by enough references and links given in this public forum. "We" have seen nothing comparable to yours.

>> As to "working in Marine avionics," Dud has NEVER mentioned a

To prove you were actually involved with such avionics work.

> Unless you care to discuss the CONVERSION of those devices to >Amateur use, there's not a bit of need to do so.

In other words, YOU DON'T KNOW THE STUFF. :-)

You are trying to make excuses for NOT being familiar with any of that equipment. Very transparent.

> I COULD run off at the mouth ala-Lennie with nomenclatures,
>manfacturers, etc, but it means nothing.

"It means nothing" because you CANNOT do so. :-)

After years of working with such equipment you CANNOT remember a single name? You cannot get the crypto terms correct...even though encryption is definitely a no-no in amateur radio use.

You've never worked with such equipment, something clearly evident in NOT mentioning names or terms.

> Well, there you go with half-baked "quotes" and innuendo as if

WHAT "agencies?" Verification by "call the VA?" :-)

Just digitize your latest DD-214, black out your SSN, and make that image available to all via a link somewhere...or by e-mail attachment. Everyone who was actually IN the military of the USA got a DD-214. Those who don't have one now can get a copy from NARA (National Archives and Records Administration) in St. Louis. A copy can be obtained via e-mail now...but the requestor must supply his/her own SSN and (if applicable) their service serial number.

> So is "liar", but you seem to wear it like the Congressional >Medal, Lennie.

I don't "LIE," Dudly. Don't have to.

> We could show YOUR "good side" of professional electronic >engineering, but hey, YOU have already done if for us!

No, not for "professional electronic engineering." Few in here are involved in that. You certainly have NOT been involved in that.

I am a Life Member of the IEEE, a professional organization.
The IEEE has a Code of Ethics regarding electronics (and electric) engineering and I follow that.

> A person is not a liar unless they are NOT telling the truth.

Dudly is, "by NOT telling the truth," claiming fradulent service with the USMC. Dudly only CLAIMS to have done things, has presented NO evidence or references of any kind to corroborrate his claims.

> YOU have been found NOT telling the truth on occassions far too >numerous to count.

"occasion." [get your S out of there...]

Tsk, tsk, tsk, Dudly makes a LIE in that statement.

Another "mirror syndrome" activity of Dudly: Try to misdirect by calling his challengers as "liars." Typical, but NOT a "reply" to anything.

> And Leonard H. Anderson has, once AGAIN, demonstrated that he is an >intentionally deceitful old putz who's weak minded, cowardly and >without any redeeming virtue.

Personal insults are NOT "replies."

If Dudly wants to be believed, he needs only to supply some evidence of his claims. So far he has not done so, just weasel-wording some generalities and giving alleged references that cannot be obtained by the public. A DD-214 copy image would be a start.

> Just HOW does Mrs Lennie sleep in all that stench...?!?!
>
> Putz.

Refraining from those constant personal insults would be another good start in showing the world what an amateur extra class license can be. So far, there hasn't been much good shown by yourself as a "representative" "involved" "participating" radio amateur.

Get some mental health counseling soon. It would benefit everyone.

Can't you get ANYTHING right?

You wrote of AMATEUR radio. That is AMATEURISM.

AMATEUR radio is NOT professional radio.

>Amateur radio is most assuredly a closed community in that only those >who have passed licensing exams may participate.

Tsk, tsk, tsk, by Heilian Rules: NO ONE can "become interested" in amateur radio UNLESS they ALREADY have an amateur radio license! Ergo, those going for their first amateur radio license exam are "not interested!"

Very ILL-logic, David. ["chicken and egg paradox"]

Your mindset of "closed community" is not only strange but sociopathic and bigoted. It is imaginative of some ritualistic group of mystics practicing arcane arts. :-)

>You have not done so and you may not participate.

"I may not participate?" Who is to "stop" my interest in anything? Some two-bit control-freak waving his federal amateur radio license saying "do I as I command
you?" :-)

>Your claim of decades of interest in amateur radio is itself nearly a >decade old.

Much, much OLDER, David? Can't you get ANYTHING right?

I've had an interest in radio in general since the late 1940s. [can't you remember what your word-enemies have written in here?]

RADIO (in general) is fascinating stuff to me. So much so that I made radio-electronics my career choice.

You exhort that "I have no interest," therefore "I cannot participate." :-)

All because of NOT being granted an amateur radio license.

>You still hold no amateur radio license of any class.

Absolutely correct. In March I will have held a COMMERCIAL RADIO LICENSE (First Class Radiotelephone)
for 50 years!

>I don't know a single soul who imagines himself a god of radio.

"Gods of radio" (disguising themselves as mighty macho morsemen AMATEURS) seem to be soul-less. [hear them roar!] :-)

>I know that you've, at various times, imagined me to be a god of radio.

One can only go by the words you've written, mighty macho morseman amateur. Takes NO imagination to read that. You have "laid down rules" that all others must obey, lest they get the wrath of a self-imagined "god of radio" in here. :-)

>Well, one thing is certain. You're no radio amateur.

Not a LICENSED radio amateur.

I've been a hobbyist in radio-electronics since the late 1940s.
That's longer than I've been a PROFESSIONAL in radio-electronics. Since HOBBY interests hardly ever return anything on monetary investments, HOBBY activities are classified as "amateur."

Radio-electronics is fascinating stuff to me, very enjoyable.
I do like to discuss and trade ideas on the subject. I just don't enjoy being given orders by self-imposed gods of radio who imagine themselves to be in-charge over moral and ethical standards in hobby activities.

>Don't attempt at giving orders here, Leonard.

Why? Do I impinge on your imagined "bossmanship" in here?

:-)

>> One does NOT have to be "involved" through federal licensing >> to discuss either radio, licensing, or license testing for >> amateur radio.
>You have discussed (but mostly pontificated) here for many years.

Tsk, tsk, tsk, you contradict yourself. Remember, at the beginning of your "reply" you stated "I have no interest" in amateur radio...because of not getting an AMATEUR radio license. :-)

>> The FCC does NOT require any staffer or commissioner to >> have been granted any amateur radio license in order to >> MAKE amateur radio regulations OR regulated its use.

>That'll be relevant when you are appointed to or hired by the Commission.

Can't you get ANYTHING right?

What I wrote is RELEVANT NOW. Search all through Title 47 C.F.R. as you wish but NO commissioner or staff of the FCC is required to hold, be granted ANY FCC radio license in order to regulate and enforce ALL of United States civil radio.

>Who has forbidden you to speak?

David Heil.

Heil claims only the already-licensed "are interested" in amateur radio; i.e., they are "participants." All others must then have no interest.

That does not bode well for newcomers to amateur radio, does it? Normal human life expectancy will soon whittle down the ranks of the already-licensed radio amateurs in the USA since those without amateur radio licenses are "not interested" in radio. :-)

>When you speak, you speak as one with limited knowledge of the topic.

"As if." :-) Amateur radio and its activities are NO SECRET. There is NO secret cabal of radio amateurs who know all there is to know about radio...thus passing on those secrets to other, already-licensed radio amateurs who are "interested" and "participants." :-)

>Thanks for the advice. I'll do that about the time you stop your >pontificating and condescension. In other words, I won't have to worry >about it in this lifetime.

Tsk, tsk, tsk. David desires to still be in CONTROL over what everyone thinks, does, desires! His "lifetime task!" :-)

David is bound and determined to be IN CONTROL of everyone (whether they like it or not)!

>> I've been VERY much "involved" with radio for just about >> 53 years now. Radio. Communications radio.
>We all know about that. It isn't amateur radio.

YOU know NOTHING about that. You aren't a "participant" in my life (thanks be to God). You are NOT a god of radio who can tell others what to like, dislike, desire, hate, or be involved in...but you sincerely TRY to do that...

>I didn't write "radio". I wrote "amateur radio".

Are we to care "what you wrote?" I thought we were to OBEY what you wrote.

>You're on the outside and you've never been on the inside.

I AM on the inside right now, writing this. Too cool to be outside this southern California morning. :-)

>> At the
>> professional level, not in some "clubhouse" idea of some >> backyard amateurs sitting around thinking they were God's >> Gift to the radio world because they have been granted a

>There's the condescension.

I don't "condescend" anything. All I do is state what so many licensed radio amateurs DO, act like, behave. Some of those are simply assholes who think their feces emits no odor.
David, you act like one of those.

An AMATEUR radio license grant is simply a permission to operate under specific federal rules of law. No more. Those who think it is "more" than that have an imagination at odds with reality.

Having been granted a federal AMATEUR radio license is NOT some grant to be of better moral or ethical status than anyone else.
Try to get over that imagined power of yours.

>Radio amateurs are granted a federal license to be hams.

Can't you get ANYTHING right?

The Food and Drug Administration and the Agriculture Department of the United States determines what is "ham" (and other pork products)...and regulate its quality.

Only LICENSED radio amateurs are granted permission to operate on CERTAIN frequencies with CERTAIN modes according to federal law.

>You haven't got one.

I'm not involved with food products and try to avoid contact with swine. However, sometimes contact with swine is just unavoidable. :-)

I got my first radio license (from the FCC, testing at their Chicago field office) a half century ago. It was a COMMERCIAL radio operator license (i.e., professional).

Please explain why an AMATEUR radio license grant is the ONLY thing necessary to hold a superior moral, ethical, or academic viewpoint over others involved in radio. Hmmm?

>Talk with them 'til you're blue in the face.

Sorry, there's no Scotch in my blood and I'm not eager to emulate William Wallace. Wallace was drawn and quartered some while ago for defying the Crown.

Are you attempting to emulate the Crown in trying to draw and quarter all of your word-enemies in here? Certainly appears that way. :-)

With the bestest of regards and a hearty "good luck on this, now,"

I have not been a user of the 220 MHz band (hmmm - maybe that's part of the problem!), and cannot add much to what the original ARRL bulletin stated.

I do recall receiving warning bulletins from the RAC back in 2004 stating that the 220 - 222 MHz Amateur allocation was under review by Industry Canada, and we would lose it if we were not sufficiently active on it. Commercial interests (specifically for multi-use radios (MURS), trunked mobile and fixed wireless access applications, medical telemetry and utility telemetry applications) had petitioned for this spectrum to be released to them.

In short - we did not sufficiently utilize this band - and lost it, despite significant lobbying by RAC to hang on to it.

Goes to show ya that our Amateur frequency allocations are not crafted in stone - they can be taken away if we cannot demonstrate that we are actively using them!

I didn't say that at all. If you've been interested for decades in amateur radio (and you've been telling us that for almost a decade), you aren't really interested in amateur radio. If you had been, you'd have acted upon your interest.

> Ergo, those going for their > first amateur radio license exam are "not interested!"

You aren't going for your first amateur radio license exam. You aren't doing doodly-squat. Six years ago, you were going for your "Extra right out of the box". For six years, you've done nothing.

> Very ILL-logic, David. ["chicken and egg paradox"]

Your chicken stayed on the same side of the road, all the while expressing "interest" in roads.

What I wrote is fact. If you have no license, you may not participate.

I think you've got it.

> Who is to "stop" my interest

Let's take amateur radio as an example. So far, the only person stopping you is you.

You may be "interested" in obtaining a pilot's license. You may tell anyone on the planet that you have an interest in obtaining a pilot's license. You may even do so for decades. You may talk at great length about flying. You may have a few friends who are pilots. You may haunt a pilot's newsgroup. But you don't become a pilot until you obtain the license.

> You exhort that "I have no interest," therefore "I cannot > participate." :-)

You're confused. We're discussing "amateur radio". You've expressed a decades-long interest. You've told us that for nearly a decade. You've never acted.

> All because of NOT being granted an amateur radio license.

Granted? You've never even made a move toward obtaining the license.
Six years ago, you stated that you were obtaining an "Extra right out of the box". The box is sealed.

>> You still hold no amateur radio license of any class.

I don't care if you hold it for another fifty years. That doesn't make you a licensed radio amateur.

Amateurs! That's right, Len. Radio amateurs are AMATEURS. They enjoy radio for the love of it. Many of them have had careers in PROFESSIONAL radio as well. They manage to do both and to tell the difference between them.

>> I know that you've, at various times, imagined me to be a god of radio.

That's right. I've never claimed to be a god of radio.

To read what, Len?

> have "laid down rules" that all others must obey, lest they

I don't lay down rules in amateur radio, Len. The FCC does that.
Besides, you aren't in amateur radio.

I've already told you that I'm not a god of radio and that I don't know anyone else who believes himself to be a god of radio. Is your attention span that short?

>> Well, one thing is certain. You're no radio amateur.
> Not a LICENSED radio amateur.

That's the only kind of radio amateur I know of, Len. Any Jack Dandy who isn't a licensed radio amateur but claims to be a radio amateur is simply a POSEUR!

> I've been a hobbyist in radio-electronics since the late 1940s.

Great. That makes you a radio/electronics hobbyist.

I'm sure that causes your heart to swell with pride.

Fine, Len. You're an amateur radio/electronics hobbyist.

> Radio-electronics is fascinating stuff to me, very enjoyable.

Great. Enjoy it.

> I do like to discuss and trade ideas on the subject.

I'm sure there are a number of newsgroups set up just for guys like you.
I think it'd be nice if you had a place to meet with like-minded individuals. It might even ease your frustration over years you've wasted in r.r.a.p.

> I just > don't enjoy being given orders by self-imposed gods of radio

Well, as I've told you, I've never claimed to be a god of radio and I don't personally know any radio amateurs who consider themselves to be gods of radio, but I can see how you'd feel uncomfortable and maybe even a little intimidated in the company of those who have spent decades practicing a craft.

Actually, (tsk, tsk, tsk) you're the one who is contradicting himself.
I acknowledged that you've claimed a decades-long interest in amateur radio but that you've not acted upon that interest. You tend to play the guy who is just getting ready to enter amateur radio. You've been getting ready for decades and decades.

Nope. Not once; not ever. You have, you might remember, told me to shut up or to go away. Isn't it interesting that you have done something of which you accuse others?

You certainly screw things up, Len. That isn't what I've said at all.
The already licensed are participants. I've acknowledged your claimed interest and I've pointed out that you have yet to act upon it. YOu are not a participant in amateur radio.

> That does not bode well for newcomers to amateur radio, does Newcomers? Those just licensed? They're radio amateurs, Len. You aren't.

> Normal human life expectancy will soon whittle down the Others enter amateur radio. If you entered, you'd be one of them. You haven't done so. Of of these days, you might achieve neophyte status.

I'm not banking on it.

Just as if.

No, they aren't. That makes it even more peculiar that a guy with those decades of interest in amateur radio couldn't have taken the logical step of acting upon that interest.

How do you know there is no such secret cabal? If it existed, do you suppose that all would run around blabbing it to you? :-)

Actually, you (the non-radio amateur) seemed to be telling me what to do. You aren't in control of my actions on or off the air, Len. I'll do as I please. You may do as you can.

I thought I'd already pointed out the fact that I've never claimed to be a god of radio, Len. You do have trouble with your memory.

You don't have to like amateur radio. You don't have to dislike amateur radio. You don't have to desire amateur radio. You don't have to hate amateur radio. You certainly don't have to be involved in amateur radio. Happy now?

You don't even know "many" licensed radio amateurs. Hams aren't about How about the part you snipped? You know, the part where you yourself used the word hams. I guess you were talking about pork product.

Thanks for your masterful statement of the obvious. So if a guy didn't pass the exam granting him an amateur radio license, he wouldn't have permission to operate on those CERTAIN frequencies with CERTAIN modes according to federal law. Do you have such a license?

That's two incorrect. Actually, it is the same incorrect answer twice.
Len isn't involved or "involed" in amateur radio. He is not a participant.

I'm sorry, that too is incorrect. Len's submission of comments to the FCC do not make him a participant in amateur radio. That is merely a sign of his fetish.

Feel free to share any insider knowledge in your possession that Leonard Anderson is soon likely to become a licensed radio amateur.

That's easy:

Len had declared a "decades-long interest" in amateur radio.

Len has been telling the story of the "decades-long" interest for nearly a decade.

During all of those years, he has never taken an amateur radio license exam.

Despite his boast of going for the "Extra right out of the box" six years ago, he has not obtained an amateur radio license of any class.

Now feel free to present any evidence you have which would counter my claim.

Do you mean the R&O which was issued six years ago, the one on which Len based his "Extra right out of the box" boast? Isn't it a little late for that?

From Google Web Definitions:

Definitions of mystic on the Web:

"* mysterious: having an import not apparent to the senses nor obvious to the intelligence; beyond ordinary understanding; 'mysterious symbols'; 'the mystical style of Blake'; 'occult lore'; 'the secret learning of the ancients' "

Well you must have an import not apparent to the senses of the average person.

"* relating to or resembling mysticism; 'mystical intuition';
'mystical theories about the securities market' "

You don't seem to have any intuition, mystical or otherwise.

"* someone who believes in the existence of realities beyond human comprehension"

...or at least beyond his own comprehension.

You should have left it alone, Mark. You've both misspelled the word.
Spelling isn't the issue. The issues are that 1) you didn't bother to look up the word and 2) that you charged right in accusing Steve of using a profanity by using the word which in know way signifies a profanity. You have thereby earned the title "Boob of the Week".

yes it does

it does not prove of but it is evidence of it but it this case it means you are evading the issue

why do you lie?

Mark, you are the most complete maladroit I've ever encountered. The line which you claim that I forged and altered was written exactly the way you see it by Len Anderson himself.

It'd probably be a good idea for you to know what the hell you're talking about before making yourself look more like a mental midget.

Mark,

I bought into your "truce" posts and gave you the 36 hours you asked for. However when I check back into the group, there's nothing but posts by you of the usual "stvie ####" type subject lines, etc...

So...Am I the only one observing this?

If you want this to work, YOU have to put some effort into it also...That means not regurgitating those subject lines.

Because of the Not-Ham action of maliciously getting

what is (AND WHAT IS NOT AND NEVER CAN BE) Ham Radio, and to this end, I append a FAQ.....

What is Ham Radio?

(Preface)
It is becoming increasingly difficult to fly the flag for decency and for civilised behaviour in Radio Hammery. Even the Usenet newsgroups dedicated to the cause have degenerated into a hotbed of abusive onslaughts by those who ought to know better.
However, there still exists the fundamental basis on which Ham Radio is based, and that will never die. This FAQ ("What Is Ham Radio?") will be regularly published and will not be shouted or bullied down. It is important that those of a technical bent, who are the natural seed-corn of Radio Hammery
and who gravitate towards us to be the real novitiate, can still find us, (and know that we are still here), their fellows.

-----ooooo-----

Please remember that this FAQ is a _POSITIVE EXHORTATION_
to you to exert yourselves to join our fraternity! (If you find otherwise, then perhaps you are already classing yourself in the mediocre groups of those who are criticised in the FAQ and from whom we _MUST_ dissociate? If so - it's never too late for a re-taxonomisation on your part - there's nothing elitist about us, and we welcome all those who are prepared to put themselves
out in order to join our ranks!)

-----ooooo-----
(Article)
So,.....What is Ham Radio?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for those who are interested in the science of radio wave
propagation and who are also interested in the way that their radios function. It has a long-standing tradition of providing a source of engineers who
are born naturals.

Ham Radio awakens in its aficionados a whole-life
fascination with all things technical and gives
an all-abiding curiosity to improve one's scientific knowledge. It's a great swimming pool, please dive in!

This excitement causes a wish to share the experience
with ones fellow man, and shows itself in the gentlemanly traditions of Ham Radio.

Radio Hams are in a unique privileged position in that they can construct and operate their own equipment! No-one else has this privilege. Users, such as broadcasters,
the po lice and armed farces, CBers and mobile phone users have to purchase ready-made gear. Manufacturers are not licensed to operate their gear. Radio Hams
are qualified to design, build and then operate their own pieces of equipment. They do this
with gusto, and also repair and modify their own equipment. This is a privilege well worth the effort to gain, and one to be jealously guarded.

The excitement that drives a Radio Ham starts with relatively simple technologies at first, perhaps making his own Wimshurst machine and primary cells. Small pieces
of test equipment follow, possibly multimeters and signal generators. Then comes receivers and transmitters. It is with the latter that communication with like-minded technically motivated people takes off. The scope for technical development grows with the years
and now encompasses DSP and DDS. There is also a great deal of excitement in the areas of computer programming to
be learnt and applied.

The technical excitement motivates Radio Hams to compete with each other to determine who has designed and manufactured
the best-quality station. This competitiveness is found in DXing, competitions and fox-hunts.

-----OOOOO----

However, beware! A Ham Radio licence is such a desirable thing to have that there are large numbers of people who wish to be thought of
as Radio Hams when, in fact, they are nothing of the kind! Usually such people are a variation of the CB Radio hobbyist; they buy their radios off the shelf and send them back to be repaired; they are not interested in technical discussion
and sneer at those who are; they have no idea how their radios work inside and have no wish to find out;
they are free with rather silly personal insults;
they have not satisfied any technical qualification
and their licences prevent the use of
self-designed-and-built equipment.

These CB types engage in the competitive activities
with their Cheque-Book-purchased off-the-shelf radios
in a forlorn effort to prove that they are Radio Hams.

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

-----ooooo-----

One such CB type is the so-called "Not-Ham". Otherwise known as the CBer-Masquerading-As-A-Radio-Ham, this type
had their background in the hobby that is CB Radio and not in the technical pursuits that lead up to a coveted Ham licence.
Easily recognised by their boasts of the criminal activity of 11 metre SSB operation, one wonders why they don't go back to the CB Bands if such bands are dearer in their hearts than are the Ham Bands? No _REAL Radio Hams associate with those who made an illegal installation of transmitting equipment before being
in possession of an appropriate licence.

-----ooooo-----

One infallible way to disambiguate the CB Radio Hobbyist
from the _REAL_ Radio Ham is to solicit their view of the difference between CB Radio and Ham Radio. A Radio Ham will perceive Ham Radio to be a technical pursuit and will perceive CB Radio to be a social communications facility
no different in essence to a land-line telephone or a GSM mobile in the hands of a 6-year-old. Thus a Radio Ham could also hold a CB licence safe in the knowledge that such a licence says no more about him than having a land-line telephone, whilst continuing to regard Ham Radio as a separate technical pursuit.

A CB Radio hobbyist, on the other hand, sees no difference between a Ham Radio licence and a CB Radio licence. To him, they are sisters-under-the-skin. Wrongly, the CB Radio Hobbyist then tries to classify himself as the equal of the Radio Ham when, in fact, he is nothing of the kind. A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme.

-----ooooo-----

One group of people who claim to be of the standard of Radio Hams but who are in reality nothing more than an apology for the failure of a CBer are those class B licensees who falsely proclaimed that they were against the use of a Morse Test to control access to the HF bands, until, that is, a test was introduced at their intellectual level, the intellectual level of 6-year-olds.

6 year-olds simply lack the mathematical tool kit to enable them to handle even the simplest algebraic manipulation for Ohm's Law and thus, the disgraceful Class Ber's in the aforementioned category are not Radio Hams by any stretch of the imagination!

Remember - A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme!

It is ridiculous for you to assume that Steve made the post with an offer of truce since he has never ever used such language in any post.

What you did is called error, magnified by stupidity.

What does my doing here have to do with your obvious uneventful life, pizza boy?

Behold he shall ride upon a hard dick and his name shall be Lloyd Autistic Davies.

And it came to pass that the king of knob jobs in Alabama, (as Lloyd is known) was gone for a long time, and some of the people celebrated and some speculated that he had died, some speculated that he was ill, some speculated that he was in Maryland at Ray Chason's

apartment, and some even thought that the king of knob jobs in Alabama had been made a sex slave by Ray Chason and his butt buddies. It was then the people started to rejoice.

And when the niggers and crackheads heard the murmuring and rumours of the people they assured them that the king of knob jobs in Alabama was just busy sucking on one of his nigger neighbors' big black dicks and would address the people as soon as he could swallow that big load of nigger jizz. The neighbors in his hud apartment complex also knew that the project was the sucking of nigger dicks and telling lies and more lies, but they did not tell the people this for they did not desire to have a vice squad nightmare in the city of Deliverance Extras. Alabama liked to hear about the fat retarded one who proclaimed he was the king of knob jobs in Alabama.

And the niggers and crackheads reassured the people that everything was all right, and told them to prepare pyres and to cook meat, and to ice down beer and nehi soda, and to go out and buy potato chips and other unhealthy snacks from the traders who had immigrated to the kingdom from Vietnam and the land of Gaza. And so the went down to these little stores owned and bought these things. And they went home and warmed up their TV's, for the sabbath approached and the sabbath would bring more action from the mediocre football team at U of Alabama, and the sabbath would bring plenty of exciting nob gobbling action and goo

gobbling from the king of knob jobs in Alabama.

The king of knob jobs in Alabama in reality is a ghastly pale porker who stands only 5'6" and weighs an unhealthy 290 Lbs. His skin is as white as copying paper due to his night job of delivering pizzas to the ghetto neighborhood where he dwells in a filthy, roach infested

HUD hovel. He doesn't venture outside during the daylight hours, instead preferring to play with Star Trek and Dalek dolls, post lies and filth on the internet and jack off to thoughts of his unrequited love interest Roger Wiseman and dream of finally actually getting some pussy. Not stick pussy, which his homosexual lover Steve Holsten feeds him several times a year when Lloyd goes for his visits, usually around Thanksgiving.

Lately, the king of knob jobs in Alabama has been consumed with posting pictures of someone

he says is Roger Wiseman. In fact, the obviously botched purple rendering of somebody else has been cut and pasted, photoshopped and distributed all over the internet by the king of knob jobs in Alabama and his homosexual fantasy lover Ray Chason who is the king of knob jobs in Maryland. Chason who is also a porker has set up a blog of Roger's ex-wife "Regina" telling even more lies. Roger wasn't ever married to anyone named Regina. Of course Chason and Lloyd refuse to let truth get in the way of their lies, like their butt buddy friends who post lies, lies and more lies about anybody who reveals the truth about this band of homosexual predators.

Lloyd thinks that everyone who post anything about him is Roger, or as Lloyd says...Woger.

Now what kind of "Man" would talk like that? Right, only a fucking queer! I have never met

Roger, but have talked with him many times on 20 meters, something Lloyd can't do, as he only has a learners license for the Amateur Radio Bands. Roger doesn't have any speech impediment, but Lloydie's girly high pitched voice with his prominent lisp has been heard on his shitty "shows."

Lloyd recently posted some stupid baby queer shit on our message boards about his supposed

"Army of Daleks" at his command. Shit, someone needs to put this mental retard away and throw the key away. What a big fat retarded overgrown baby!

And just right on cue , Billy has the mental capacity of a fish, fell

Poor Billy lives in a section 8 HUD apartment, on food stamps and works

Lying again huh Woger. So what happened to your hillbilly daddy? Did he figure out that you werent his and left bastard child. As far as swallowing or sucking, Ive never did that but Schlongmeister Wussman obviously does it all the time in his crap infested hovel deep down in the bowels of West Virginia. Which by the way to anyone who hasn't been there, truly is the bowel of the United States with its trashy neighborhoods and obese bucktoothed people

And Wussman lives in his mommy's old house and lived with her from t he ages of 30 till 48 when he finally poked his malformed head out of his obese ass and said here I am. Poor Wussman, still keeping your Mommy in that cold room for later action. Do you still hide behind the curtains like you did when you were paid a visit.

I've never lived in a HUD apartment nor on food stamps nor drank bud lite.
But you seem to know much about hte lifestyle.

Within the past day, you've written (badly) the following about Steve Robeson:

"busllhit you are not"

Busllhit indeed.

"you are lying about me"

Everybody is always lying about you. Isn't that odd?

"I did not alude to I accepted an off made in YOUR name"

In his name? I'm thinking about making you an offer in the name of Charlemagne.

"you claim that offer was fraud and now you are lying and claiming I was the orginator"

How is that different from your lying and claiming that Steve is the originator?

"you are lying and by assuming every refereernce to ste is a rferen to you is paranoia"

Everybody on the planet is lying about you, Colonel.

"since you were never honoring your end the apology and agreeingto refrain from you lies and baseless attacks I will make such attack as I see fit"

You mean you'll continue to foul the newsgroup?

"you post a fraudulant apology and then you claim you did not post it you don't get the truce that apology asked for"

...but Steve seemed willing to go along with it until you came apart.

"what you did is called theft by deception"

...except that the deception wasn't Steve's.

"now steve claims outrage that I violated a truce mad ein his name that along with his flaiure to prove his claim that the apolgoy was a forgery proes that steve set the whole thing up"

By what stretch of logic, as commonly understood by human civilization, does your wild theory become truth?

"conspricay to commit fraud"

Conspiracy? A conspiracy of one? How does that work?

"where is your pove that the origainl was forged"

His "pove" is in the header, Colonel.

"where is your proof?"

See above.

"you are the fraud you made the apology I offered you none and will not"

He made the apology except that he didn't make the apology. Read the header, Colonel.

"you have since deined your apology but you contiue to tell lies about my action you are depecable"

Depecable?

"nope never more lies"

The whole solar system is planting falsehoods about Mark C. Morgan.

It looks from here like you've arrived at the brink of madness. A few more days might send you into the abyss.

Let's test it on your sentence above: "I certinaly do know it dave"
The word "certainly" is misspelled. There is no comma after "it" and
"Dave" is capitalized. Other than your three errors in the one, short sentence, you're perfect.

Incorrect. I've pointed out that you both misspelled it. Only you

It would "sem" that "speeling" would be a good topic for you.

I think Steve may be in error about the woman you call your "wife".
Contrary evidence from you would indicate that she is your girlfriend.

On the other side of the coin, there were more non-amateur radio users desiring VHF spectrum?

money interests" and other Bravo Sierra...]

That's always the case. However, presenting a case is not always done properly (or realistically). In the USA there was a petition for the "60m band" for U.S. amteur use and the FCC granted only a few CHANNELS in that region of HF. That was in spite of other (non-amateur, non-broadcasting) users not using that part of the HF spectrum often or heavily.

>> Condor Net covering most of the length of California and >> reaching into states of Nevada and Arizona. Over two

I forgot to include the URL for the Condor Net:

http://www.condor-connection.org

The Condor Net has been up for 28 years, is privately-owned and run by amateurs, is open to anyone on 1 1/4 meters in the California (Sacramento to San Diego), Arizona (Phoenix, Kingman), Nevada, and parts of Utah near California. It was designed for LONG-distance repeatering, entire Net control via PLCC tone signalling and thus isn't a "local" repeater. I view it as an excellent concept-AND-implementation and a true hobbyist good-spirit endeavor (NO fees charged for participation).

I bring up the Condor Net because of the approximate equivalency of populations between California and all of Canada and that the Condor Net extends the linkage of VHF FM radios a very long way. Obviously Canada has much more territory to cover, but Condor extends over a 700 (give or take) range of geographic coverage.

From the "cool pictures" page on the condor-connection URL, it is obvious that the owners-operators are getting a bit long in the tooth. However, they all paid for the network out of their own pockets, had to have the free money of their own to sink into the concept, and have not asked for anything in return from any user. Some of the repeater sites have changed ownership as a few of the originals retired or moved. At close to three decades of use it is still hanging in there and kept on the air. I give them a lot of credit for doing so...in the true spirit of fellowship to other amateur radio hobbyists.

You wrote of AMATEUR radio, David.

If it is an AMATEUR endeavor, it is about AMATEURISM.

"amateur" activity as "amateurism"?]

I'm not?!? Tsk, tsk, you definition of "really interested" seems mired in being federally licensed to specific radio bands and modes as in AMATEUR radio.

I've been interested in ALL radio. Amateur radio is a PART of that. My interest in radio is roughly six decades long, not just one, David. [I DO wish you would pay attention]

>If you had been, you'd have acted upon your interest.

I have acted, both as an amateur and a professional. :-)

However, the pay for a professional actor (live, on stage) is so little it might as well be on the amateur level (no compensation).

>You aren't going for your first amateur radio license exam.

I'm not? Do I have to "check in" with Herr Robust in order to "do" something? :-)

Untrue. I sometimes doodle while on the telephone. However, I've never "squatted" and doodled. :-)

"Nothing?!?" :-)

Ah, NOT APPROVED by Herr Robust und his Kommandments! :-)

>Your chicken stayed on the same side of the road, all the while >expressing "interest" in roads.

Untrue! In the last six years I've driven in excess of eighteen thousand miles on roads. Of course, I've obeyed the traffic rules and NOT driven on the "other side of the road" except where legally permissable (as in passing another vehicle on two-lane roads).

>What I wrote is fact.

Pfffttttt...

What "you wrote" is a lot of moralistic claptrap designed by yourself to win message points. :-)

What ARE you, Herr Robust, an AMATEUR Johnnie Cochrane? :-) prohibitive then, still is. :-)

I can, but aerodynamics, meteorology, aircraft technology is not necessarily related to being licensed as a pilot.

>You may have a few friends who are pilots.

I do.

>You may haunt a pilot's newsgroup.

I don't.

>But you don't become a pilot until you obtain the license.

Untrue. Only to be a LEGAL pilot, Herr Robust.

I really don't know WHY you introduce this NON-subject into an amateur radio policy newsgroup, Herr Robust. You are venturing far afield from the general subject matter.

I've stated my interest in RADIO began about in 1947. Do the that before in here. That your memory is erroneous is not my problem.

No? :-) Who started Ham Radio Outlet? Henry Radio? A host of other sales and service organizations specializing in amateur radio? :-)

How about the ARRL BoD? The officers and staff that get

How about all the pipe-dreamers imagining themselves as radio-gods-of-the-air busy "saving lives" through their "working the bands" and "working DX on HF with CW?" :-)

Why some of them have had "seven hostile actions" experienced in doing so! :-)

First you say "my interest has only been for a decade," and now you make decades a plural. Is your reasoning "erroneous?"

Oh, my, an acting critic! Should I tear up my AFTRA card? :-)

Herr Robust, I may not be of "Oscar" thespianship but I HAVE acted. :-)

>You've never even made a move toward obtaining the license.

"Move?!?" You are now insisting I MOVE? Why? I OWN this land and house...in two states. NO mortage, no liens, no debts...on both of them.

Well, yes, the southern California residence is NOT good for HF propagation to my north to east direction, but that is NOT a good reason why I should give up this SoCal residence and MOVE north to Washington.

You are getting very, very severe in your demands!

Gosh, Herr Robust, you should have warned the late Jim Fisk of that "lack of (proper) interest" when he accepted several articles of mine for Ham Radio magazine! And then Alf Wilson (who took over as editor-in-chief) who made me an Associate

I didn't post a fraudulent anything.

But I did give us both the opportunity to cool things off.

What I CONTINUE to see are a bunch of threads re-tasked with the same-ole "stve ####" subject lines despite having myself laid off the ususal rhetoric.

Nope. There's about 30 + posts here since day before yesterday,
and not a ONE of them "More Markie Mularkie"...

> I was dthe one duped by your call for a truce by your public apoly

We both were, Mark, but I told you I was willing to roll with it.

Prove you're injured.

I didn't make the "apology", Mark, but I told you I was willing to give it a try.

So far all I have received from you is a nose rubbing in having trusted you.
> > So...Am I the only one observing this?

I didn't deny anything other than making the original post. I did say we'd give it a try. I even told you I'd give you your 36 hours you asked for.

You've used it to load the group up with "mre stve ####" posts.

> why should I oserve omethign with you that you claim does not exist

I didn't say it doesn't exist.

If you mean someone getting on their knees and kissing your butt,
that's not a happening thing.

But so far you've gotten the 36 hours you asked for and not a single "Markie Mularkie" post to cover up your profanities.

So, Mark, WHERE'S THE TRUCE...?!?!

Dave and steve you often go on about my being mad or insane

will agree wth you to extent that between one side or the is truely insane

I happen to think I am on the side of sanity, but unlike you 2 I am arogant to claim that I must be right merely that I believe I am

I can state with absolute authority that if I happen to be worng I prefer isanity to live the strange lives ythat your example shows of sanity

no doubt by now steve is posting something about the need to comit me but he forgots that merely not being normal is not cause for somitment you have be a danger to self or others for that. He forgets ifhe ever knew, that going certain that one is in jeusus chrsist is not reason to comit someone unles it can be shown they are dangerous

You don't get to choose which posts I respond to and which I don't respond to. If that galls you, you'll get over it in time. Frankly I'm rather tired of your insane tirades which have nothing whatever to do with amateur radio. If you decide to keep fouling this newsgroup, I may

It's always "the question" with you. You've declined to answer any number of my questions. What is to make me eager to answer any particular question that you choose to put to me?

Dave and steve you often go on about my being mad or insane

will agree wth you to extent that between one side or the is truely insane

I happen to think I am on the side of sanity, but unlike you 2 I am arogant to claim that I must be right merely that I believe I am

Your are nuts, Mark. A Blithering Idiot.
I hate to agree (for the first time in my life) with Wiseman, but you are in dire need of help.

I agree that you're arrogant. I think you're insane because I observe sane people on a daily basis. You aren't at all like them.

You've posted some things which could lead people to believe that you'd be dangerous to others. I've archived a number of them--just in case.

That's odd. Your previous post seemed to indicate that you don't think I should be posting in this thread since you see my posting as somehow supporting Steve. If that isn't what you meant to convey, perhaps you should backtrack and explain yourself.

In the case where you have used abundant profanity in posting hundreds and hundreds of irrelevant posts, yes, I'd say it is insane. By the way, the Fulas aren't in this newsgroup. They're in West Africa.

> nah it is just that fact you and stev always works to finds reasons to

If you want to use profanity and constantly bewail the state of your existence as (you believe) ruined by Steve, I see little reason why anyone would want to discuss anything with you, save to poke fun at you.

I can say becuase you can't discuss anything with anybody indeed I rember back to your questioning me about my faith after ducking that this wasn't the right place I agreed but the answers were not to your likeling so you broke off the discusion with a fury of in vective as I recall

witness your inablity to discuss anything with Len

all you sem to is try and set condictions to exclude everyone you disagree with

It seem you can't discuss any subject. It is certain that you refuse to discuss any subject in a sane let alone civiil manner unless you counter part agrees in advance to what ever rules you want to set

all your posting is flaming attack or describeing the reasons you refuse to discuss

stev posting style is poor and despectable yours is just foul

It was a foregone conclusion that the alleged truce twixt Mental Markie and Steve would last all but ten minutes.
Steve did his part in that he gave Markie the benefit of the doubt, even tho Steve did not author the "truce". Nonetheless, Steve was willing to go along with it, which speaks well of him.
Enter forgers, malcontents, and under-educated idiots such as Mark (who cannot discern night from day), and the battle resumed.
Mark could (and should) do this group a great favor if he were to cease posting his stupid drivel and concentrate instead on the CB groups where he so clearly belongs.

Yeah, imagine anyone not being able to discuss anything with Len.
Go figure.

Condictions? I'll wait for the referee's decision on this one.

It doesn't seem that way to me. From observing your discussion style, I don't see much in the way of discussion when you accuse someone with a different point of view of being a "liar", "lair" or "lier" and follow that by playing a game of "no it isn't; yes, it is; no it isn't".

> It is certain that you refuse to Please feel free to point to any post I've made which refer to the setting of rules in a discussion.

May I ask the nature of the hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of recent posts which you've made--posts with subject lines like, 'why does dave lie?'"

> stev posting style is poor and despectable yours is just foul

You have absolutely no room to refer to anyone else's posts as any of those things--not while you're posting material under the subject, "more shit".

OK. I give up. What is "despectable"?
A cross, perhaps, between despicable and disreputable?
A bad spectacle? A spatula?
As you so aptly put it, "It seem you can't discuss any subject".

read up the screen. See what was under discussion. Read my comments.
Note how they follow that discussion. In other words, you're simply wrong.

You bet wrong. All of the questions you asked were previously answered. See the portions where you did not bother to look up the word and where you claimed that the word means something which it plainly does not mean.

It is evident that 1) the material zoomed right over your pointy head or 2) you chose to ignore it in favor of continuing your rant.

Either way, you look stupid.

There you go, Mark. I've fixed it all up for you.

The words, "you are quite mad" may be the most accurate words ever written in this newsgroup.

> you were comenting the other the reason you were here was that dx was

Yes, I wrote something like that one night. You may not assume that it is a constant any more than you may assume that my writing indicates any level of frustration.

> why is it madneees to supoose that finding you here agin the same

Madneees? supoose? agin? condiction?

Might apply to what, Mark? Your madness isn't related to whether I find or do not find 160m DX.

> you will not answer the question but that is ok by me

It doesn't matter what is OK with you or not.

> your failure will speak volumes to everyone else but you and steve

Your failure to post rationally has already spoken volumes to everyone, including Steve.

no answers there dave

no answer to why it was fine with for stev to mispell a word more than 300 hunderd times and you pounce on me for doing it once you sir a re lying about your actions

becuase you lack the cowarage to tell the truth

the truth you do have a double standard you dislike me and like steve therefore you treat steve differently than me but I guess since that answer the truth or close to it is not in your version of PC you choose to lie about but you do have a double standard and the longer you contiue to avoid that truth inyour writing the more you make yourself look like a lying coward, which is fine by me since I am convinced that is exactly what you are

How can someone renege on a "pormise" made by anyone other than himself?

Am I able to make promises in your name, Mark? If you don't act upon the promises I make on your behalf, are you reneging?

That's simply untrue, Mark. You do it frequently. You've called bettern than fifteen people here liars, mostly folks who aren't lying at all, but who are merely disagreeing with you. You get away with it here only because of distance.

Amazingly enough, there are no posts on this link to support your claim.

Yeah, and all wrong. I'd add "nice try", except that it wasn't.

I have never indicated that Len Anderson should be excluded from r.r.a.p. discussions. I have repeatedly written that his view of amateur radio should be discounted as that of an uninformed non-participant. This would be much, much easier for you if you could read.

people?

My commenting on your use of profanity is the setting of rules? There are certainly rules for behavior in a public place--and this is a public place. You seem to think that you can write anything, anywhere.

The point is that you do get to choose, and you've taken the low road.

The word is "Christian". I'll keep your words in mind if I'm ever tempted to bear false witness. Stating a truth about another is not called "bearing false witness". You accused me of something which was simply not true, i.e. forging/censoring a portion of Len's post, only it turned out that the "forgery" was written by Len himself. My, my!
Doesn't that make you guilty of bearing false witness?

>... they also > obey the comand of Christ like let he that has not sined cast the

As I recall, he was saying it to those actually about to throw rocks at a woman. Now if we apply those words to you in the matter I mention above, doesn't that make you guilty of casting the first stone in your little game of "forger/censor/liar"?

>>> you claim to law abiding but you are not

Chasing DX worked? What is that supposed to mean? If I've worked it, why would I be chasing it? Which law was it which you believe I broke?

> feenchmen lately?

Feenchmen? Is that one of those Klingon things?

Is there a chance that you mean Frenchmen? I've worked Frenchmen within the past week or two. Is that against some law?

>>> you are a fraud

I usually reserve the use of terms like "crazy" for those who exhibit irrational behavior--guys like you.

that is a lie or if you would agree to stop flalming my speeling id say exageration

I don't think that

but frankly in a forum where forgery "raped an old friend" and "Mark Morgan caught ontape molesting an 8yo" "nigger mania" all pas without coment from I don't see any word such as shit or fuck or... as out of line

make up your mind

is it my right to choose or not?

if it is not my right to choose then you are seeking toengae in censorship

if it is then feel free to ignore what you don't like but you do seek to control everything about this forum and you lack the right in a free society that you choose to try is why people both imply and state outright that

Dave you never started on this thread

but I hope you uphold your promise

I doubt it though

calling your mentaly ill is a pretty low road

but you do employ a doubel standard and you are not man enough to admit prehaps but you seem to over look I do not follow the teaching fo YOUR god. I follow the teaching of Other good therfore I am not bound by the same rules in this case

as a person you can cast the first seecond or t10th stone

It surely is. It is exactly what you've done over this stupid claim of "forger", "censorer", "liar" over something Len wrote and which I never changed. Why, that's false witness and a lie--one that you have repeated numerous times.

When was it, Mark, that you conceded that you made a mistake? When did you acknowledge that I did not forge or alter or censor something which Len wrote?

Perhaps? You're in the spotlight with a mitt full of stones!

Other good? Then you won't be using my religion as ammunition. As I pointed out (and you called me a liar for it). Why are you using the teachings of a deity in which you have no belief?

> therfore I am not bound by the same rules in this case

Are you attempting to set the rules for discussion, Mark?

Do you actually have stones?

You're clear that he was discussing actual rocks, are you not?

Fine. You are unable or unwilling to document your claim. That makes your silly accusation ring sort of hollow--a bit like how I was supposed to have altered/forged/censored some of Len's material. 'Nuf said.

Usenet Posters Education Levels?

Dave Heil. College graduate and Ambassador.

Steve Robeson. College attendee and Registered Nurse.

Mark Morgan. Grade School dropout and bathroom attendee.

Todd. Home Schooled Basement Dweller, no grade known.

Stagger Lee. Education unknown, but clearly holds an advanced degree.

Len Anderson. Blowhard, no known degree.

Arf! Arf! College attendee, no known degree.

Roger Wiseman. Sociopath. Malcontent, alleged Air Force veteran, no degree.

Lloyd Davies. High School graduate, district manager.

Any others?

What you "gotta wonder" is why you seem unable to follow the

But that would ultimately result in you having to apologize for

I can't "reneg" on somethnig I didn't author, Markie.

I have, however, for the last two days stated I'd adhere to it and see where things went from there.

What we have, for anyone who cares to scroll back over the last 2

Nope. There's about 30 + posts here since day before yesterday,
and not a ONE of them "More Markie Mularkie"...

I didn't make the "apology", Mark, but I told you I was willing to give it a try.

So far all I have received from you is a nose rubbing in having trusted you.

I didn't deny anything other than making the original post. I did say we'd give it a try. I even told you I'd give you your 36 hours you asked for.

You've used it to load the group up with "mre stve ####" posts.

If you mean someone getting on their knees and kissing your butt,
that's not a happening thing.

But so far you've gotten the 36 hours you asked for and not a single "Markie Mularkie" post to cover up your profanities.

So, Mark, WHERE'S THE TRUCE...?!?!

No...Lennie said he was getting his "extra lite" out of the box.
That was a tern used then and now to describe the Amateur Extra Class

Lennie had no intention then (which makes him a liar) and will

Sorry for the mistake. My Other Half is an RN and I assumed you had the

I wonder if Lennie, in all his years of "expertise" has ever done anything save sit behind a desk?

Oops, watch out..here comes Lennie with his Salvation Army hand-me-down skivvies bringing up the back stage comedy act he missed out on. Oh! Wait!
Vaudville went out what? Sixty, seventy years ago? Lennie remembers it well...he once garnered a signature from his King of Vaudville, George Allen. And remember Gracie Allen, Len? You two were but whippersnappers back then.
Back in those days Lennie was wearing knickers and stealing Coke bottles from behind the candy store to turn them in for two cent jaw breakers.
Oh, the good old days, eh, Len? One penny could get you two for a penny candies, you could stand in front of the candy counter and make your choice while the patient store owner stood in front of you while you drooled over the goodies in the attractive case. Choices...so many choices.
One penny would get you a JawBreaker. In those days a JawBreaker was BIG!
And two pennies would get you three little pieces of gum that seemed to hold their flavor all afternoon.
And a nickel? Wow! Remember Double Bubble? Baseball cards and a BIG chunk of gum for a nickel? Remember the Three Musketeers candy bar? How big it was then? It took almost two hands to hold it...

But I digress...these days Lennie is concerned with other venues. He suffers from prostrate issues.

Steve, if you're willing to abide by an apology that you claim you didn't make, why don't you author an authentic one and start over? I think an apology where you don't call Mark a faggot would be a first good step.

Such as...?!?! Calling a liar a "liar" requires "atonement"...?!?!

Brain, for the last 40+ hours I have held my breath awating some reciprocity from Mark for the "36 hours" he said I should observe.

I did as he asked, even though the original premise for this wasn't mine.

The profanities and blasphemies of that post notwithstanding, I >>COULD<< have taken credit for something that WASN'T of my doings...Only me and the anymouse who did it would have known, and do you think someone would have jumped up and said "IT WAS ME! IT WAS ME!"...?!?!

But I didn't.

What I got for my patience and my honesty was even more of Mark's demented, profane, and childish rantings....Oh, yes...and you and Lennie egging him on.

So...We're fixing to fire up again. Unless, of course, Mark show's some sudden glimmer of lucidity and calms down and you and Lennie figure out who REALLY looks stupid here...

"Near" is right. Under Tennessee regulations the only things I can NOT do as an LPN is (1) adminster chemotherapy (2) initiate whole blood transfusions, (3) administer ANY (regardless of route) experimental drugs, and (4) perform any task that is specifically restricted to the Registered Nurse or higher licensed person.

Notice the "circle around the drain" propensity of the Feeble

Mark and Brain's strings. It's as sure as daylight and taxes.

Yet you claim to abide by it. Now you are calling other people idiot's.

I think a person who abides by another persons forgery and lie is the idiot.

If you are willing to abide by it, why not just make your own authentic apology, then abide by that?

No need to confer with Len or Mark; you are the REALLY stupid looking one here.
You have shown yourself to be untrustworthy, and it's no suprise that Mark doesn't trust you.

If you want to appear less stupid looking, you could make an authentic apology of your own, then promise to abide by a new truce.

Hint: leave the attack out of your apology this time.

By the way, how is your lawsuit coming?

Good Luck.

No...I said I'd go with Mark's suggestions DESPITE the fact that they were based of the false premise. I never said I "abide a forgery".

You're welcome to try and find a quote where I allegedly said otherwise.

> > Why do I get the feeling you're the only guy I know who get's lost

Nor you.

For example YOU apparently feel that it's OK to go about making moralistic swipes at others all the while having your OWN reputation for dishonesty and deceit.

And now you're racking up points as a sideline heckler.

You boohoo the state of the NG, yet even with me offering to work with Morgan despite his obvious recalcitrant behaviour, you egg him on.

Of course when it goes back to "status quo", there you'll be wringing your hands saying "isn't it just pitiful...?!?!"

So wade on in, Brain...Your mission's been compromised and your objectives laid bare...As if they were THAT hard to see.....

On the surface, that makes no sense at all.

But if you were to say, as Steve did, "It wasn't my apology but I'll abide by it," then it makes more sense. I guess you forgot the part where Steve agreed to abide by it. Oh well.

Well I have so much experience I am still picking the dirt out of my fingernails! <grin>

If you are comparing how "smart" (or not) people are you'd have to include years working/learning in a technical environment. I have come across some real dumb engineers and some real smart tradesmen/self learners in my life.

Have to stop talking or my head will self inflate..... <woops!>

That pretty well sums it up.

Not really. Steve told Mark that he did not author the apology. He told Mark that, in general, he'd agree to the terms. Mark called him a couple of names and it was off to the races.

> I guess you forgot the part
> where Steve agreed to abide by it. Oh well.

No, I didn't forget it. It wouldn't have changed the fact that Steve didn't post the truce agreement. It didn't change the fact that Mark thinks Steve reneged on something he didn't write. It didn't change the fact that Mark is acting completely irrationally.

I've tried to deal with Mark as I would any reasonable human being. I'm not going to deal with him when he exhibits a state of mental disarray. I've done something I've never done with any other poster in any other newsgroup. For the time being, I've killfiled him in his various personae.

It is pointless to attempt dialog with the increasingly unstable Mark Morgan.

Jim Hampton was right. The newsgroup is suddenly uncluttered.

Right. This is what Len calls "discussing getting into amateur radio".
Brian, as if on cue, does his red-hatted monkey routine.

You shouldn't have. Mark has made it clear that he does not feel compelled to accept any boundaries. I don't feel like giving him an audience for his delusional tantrums.

Mark was willing to do it.

Anyone who even remotely knows me knows I wouldn't have made that post with the profanities and blaspemies in it.

Seems to me that Mark was perfectly happy with the first one until
I pointed out that I was not the original author.

My honesty was repaid with the profanities and "business as usual" routines from him AND you.

The one NOT "getting" something here is YOU, Brain.

I told the truth.

I agreed with MOST of what Markie said after the first letter was posted and he, at least initially, appeared to accept those "terms".

I DID what I said I would do.

Markie has not.

YOU are promoting Markie's failure to do what HE said he'd do.
He's now been caught in yet ANOTHER lie and YOU are promoting lying.

Some role model as a scoutmaster, huh...?!?!

Obviously I was wrong. And you're icing that cake rather liberally.

The February, 2006 issue of 'QST', page 12 under "Media Hits" says:

"On a much larger scale, the Los Angeles County Fire Department (LAFD) put out a call to recruit up to 500 Amateur Radio operators for their Auxiliary Communications Service. In a press release on December 1, Brian Humphrey, KG6IVD, reported that they will even help people get their licenses to meet this need. (www.lafdacs.org)"

Why would a person agree to an apology which they've denied ever needing to be made and one which they didn't author themselves? Sounds kind of crazy to me.

Like I said, agreeing to an apology which you didn't make and have spent a month denying that it was needed sounds crazy to me. YMMV.

No ranting. No egging.

And I know better than to try another truce with you because you're a lying sack of excrement.

Ah, that would be your buddy K8MN.

This newsgroup is exactly how you want it.

You had the opportunity to make amends with Mark a long, long time ago.

You kept claiming that an apology wasn't required.

A false apology was made, and Mark accepted it. Then you inform him that it was false, and he feels that he's been made a fool of. And for some reason, you're claiming to abide by a forged apology. What kind of insanity is that? What a liar you are.

Personally, I've been through this with you before, and you're not to be trusted.

> Of course when it goes back to "status quo", pitiful?"

Again, the post from K4YZ@aol.com. If you don't like false apologies being made in your name, with your callsign and email account, then I suggest you be upset with someone other than myself. Best of Luck.

Now that I've had Lardass locked in my basement for two weeks, I'm getting bored with him. Variety is the spice of life, and I'm looking for sex slave #2. Either Markie or Toad would be nice. If you guys are interested, leave a message here, and I'll send you bus tickets to Glendale.

been busy today My wife took and passed the tech test to day (i'll post the call when they issue it VE said that should be by friday)

she is delighted I ma relived that she has made it over this first obstacle amusing she tried a code test the words not quiet tell the tale. it should be amusing that the wife of such a nocoder as myself has in fact some interest in CW but it seems her experences with the guy before me and CB and cbers have left her a bit mike shy and a day trip to visit my inlaws to celebrate the event

BTW I am authorized to say that without the NPRM this would not have happens happened. she tried earlier in the other session here since the NPRM she missed on to many questions, mostly I think due to test aneixity

civil behavoir would call for folsk to offer there congrats

I did till you pullout out of the deal made in your name

I stopped all out going posts I covered the ones already sent that day and the remaining Mularkie posts of your with a netraul title and did not contiue any attack till you pulled the apology blowing th BW on all three of my google accounts to do it and accepted something that only barely could be called an apology in

No, fucktard. I was just going to lock Toad in the basement to make him feel at home. When it comes time for "fun," I will dress up like his mommy, unlock the basement door, and go find him.

Mark would be locked in the basement to keep him from hurting someone else. He would be a boy-toy, and I would send him back home once I got bored with him.

Woger has issues with the Glendale Police Department. We all know that Chief Stenger has been to Roger's home on more than one occasion. Several, in fact.
And many of us already know of Roger's run-in with Sgt.Vogler.

Yet Woger tries to hide the fact that he is well known to the law enforcement officials in his home town.
Care to expound upon this, Woger?
Sgt. Vogler and Lt. Vogler know you all too well, don't they?

In a small town of less than 1500 people, the Glendale PD considers Roger as being "a person of interest".

And wouldn't you like to know, Woger, what the good Sgt. had to say about
you?

So who said anything about how MUCH you've posted?

I said you're egging Markie on. That's a truthful statement.

You didn't adhere to the last one...I'd not expect you to do any better with a second one. Brian P Burke is not a trustworthy person.

2604. K1MAN Responds To False Charges From Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers

Before the Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers
State of Maine

In the matter of:

Brian L. Crow, Complainant

vs.

Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., Respondent

Registered Professional Engineer, By Examination, in Illinois

and

Registered Professional Engineer, by Reciprocity, in Maine

and

Amateur Radio Call Sign K1MAN

and

Executive Director of the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute (Box 440, Belgrade Lakes, Maine 04918 tel. 1-800-262-9543)

and

Certified Fire Safety Advisor

SECOND MOTION TO DISMISS,

or

SECOND REQUEST FOR HEARING

Respondent, Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., hereby comes through this pleading and makes this sworn affidavit of his own personal knowledge.

INTRODUCTION

The original Brian Crow "Complaint" has essentially been dismissed by the Board with the focus now being on general discharge issues with a former employer, Ray Bouchard, and a Complaint made by Respondent to the Board against the Professional Engineer whose P.E. stamp was on Bouchard's new building plans which are in clear fire code violation according to a representation made to Respondent by the Augusta Code Enforcement Officer. This latter Complaint was dismissed by the Board on the curious grounds that said engineer "was not involved," an issue now being formally investigated by the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute, Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., Executive Director.

1. Respondent is currently d/b/a as Executive Director of the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute and is a Certified Fire Safety Advisor with hundreds of inspections and fire safety installations already made throughout Maine and the primary source of professional income since FHRI's inception shortly after Respondent was "fired" from Ray Bouchard's Light of Life Ministries and Christian radio stations in Augusta, Maine.

2. Respondent was hired by Mr. Bouchard in 2003 to be his "Chief Engineer" in the radio sense of the term "engineer" on the strength of Respondent's First Class Commercial Radiotelephone(1) and Amateur Extra Class FCC licenses, 16 years of experience in designing and operating a multi transmitter short wave station heard world wide (with an ID announcer being former CBS Newsman Walter Cronkite, who is also a licensed amateur radio operator), many years of professional experience in electronics repair and engineering modifications to Collins high frequency equipment, the design for in house manufacturing of electro-mechanical filters (equivalent to Collins mechanical filters) which were the very "heart" of 750 low frequency receivers custom made for our U.S. submarine fleet, and design and installation of many radio tower and antenna installations.

Respondent has a B.S. Degree in Industrial Engineering (January 1968) from the University of Rhode Island and is a Registered Professional Engineer by examination in that specialty in Illinois, and by reciprocity in Maine.

Respondent has completed significant course work in electrical engineering and has published several articles in the area of physics, chemistry, and the theory of relativity, as well as teaching high school physics, chemistry, and advanced math.

3. Unknown to the Respondent, Mr. Bouchard did not have adequate finances to do most of the projects worked on, and the Station Manager advised Respondent of this fact in detail after the time of hiring. Apparently, Mr. Bouchard really hired Respondent to train a high school junior for six months in electronics and engineering so that this person could assume the job of permanent Chief Engineer at minimum wage or less, since common practice at the station was to work full time and be paid for far less time than actually worked.

For example, Mr. Bouchard constructed the whole station himself, and there were no wiring diagrams or schematics of any of the maze of wire interconnects present in his broadcast station. Respondent strongly recommended making such diagrams and schematics, and Mr.

Bouchard insisted that Respondent do this work on Respondent's "own time," which Respondent declined under these circumstances. Lack of these diagrams and schematics would naturally create a "night mare" for Respondent when there was an equipment failure, as actually happened and has become a subject of the current Complaint against the Respondent.

4. Respondent never received a written job description until a few days before being "fired." The paper signed by Respondent at the time of hiring gives an incorrect impression that there ever was a written job description. The actual job description was verbal and changed on a continuing basis and included:

o Training and supervising the high school junior

o Organizing the relocation of the FM transmitter site

o Design and construction of the new transmitter site

o Starting and running an electronics school

o Negotiating with Salvation Army and private owners regarding proposed translator sites

o Repairs to station equipment

o Negotiation for a cooperative venture in training recent jail released persons.

o Erecting the first translator tower

o Negotiating the price of custom designed antennas

o Negotiating the price for purchase of station equipment

o Salvaging donated towers and equipment.

o Trouble shooting a recently installed repeater

o Selling unwanted equipment on E-Bay

o Consulting with professional consultants

o Making transmitter compliance measurements

When the owner of the FM transmitter location asked "Where is Glenn?", Mr. Bouchard said "He was let go because he wasn't following his job description." Respondent demanded in writing a retraction, and never got one from Mr. Bouchard.

5. Respondent had a computer in his engineering office (found out later to be illegally occupied per the REAL Code Enforcement Officer - Respondent was introduced to a phony "Code Enforcement Officer" minutes before being "fired(2)" -) with all work done for 2003 on a single disk. This disk was loaded into the central office computer as a back up and so some printing could be done on the central office printer. After being "fired," Mr. Bouchard found this computer file and jumped to the false conclusion that Respondent did non job related work on company time. Respondent never did any such thing, this being a very serious allegation and being a part of the current "Complaint".

6. Respondent wore many hats and relied on different credentials at different times. For example, during the tower erection, Respondent relied on previous tower erection experience with the guy anchoring scheme being standard amateur radio practice and right out of the ARRL antenna handbook(3). The design of the tower system was not a Professional Engineering design, although a progress report was written in a document signed by the Respondent who happens to be a Professional Engineer as opposed to "as a Professional Engineer."

7. Note there is nothing in the above list of job descriptions regarding contact with the FCC or obtaining a required construction permit from the FCC. When Respondent realized that there were serious FCC violations being made by Mr. Bouchard, I brought this to the attention of the station Manager who advised me to protect my personal commercial FCC license which I did by reporting the violations to the FCC immediately, both to mitigate the damages for my employer and to eliminate the danger, as Chief Engineer, and the legal FCC interpretation of this, to my FCC commercial license.

8. At no time did I ever disclose confidential information to anyone in violation of Professional Engineering ethics as apparently alleged by Mr. Bouchard.

9. Although apparently dismissed by the Board, Respondent hereby addresses the "Nazi" comment. Respondent is a world wide short wave celebrity with a daily radio program often containing robust editorials. Respondent often publishes editorials on the internet. One amateur radio data base at www.QRZ.com decided, for "hobby politics," reasons to de-list Respondent's radio call sign K1MAN. About 1000 persons posted comments, many to the effect that Respondent does not deserve to have a listing on www.QRZ.com which uses public FCC data as its basis. Making an editorial point, Respondent compared a list of commenter's call signs with being tantamount to membership in the "American Amateur Nazi Party." There is no such animal, of course. "Nazi" was later changed to "Nerd." One on the list was apparently a P.E. in California, something unknown to the Respondent and not really relevant to this current "Complaint."

8. As a Professional Engineer, I notified the owner and three other Managers of serious fire hazards at the station shortly after the AM transmitter caught fire under the stairs of the only exit to the "fire death trap" old building. That old building, curiously, met the code, but the new building did not meet code according to the REAL Code Enforcement Officer who, somewhat embarrassed, dismissed it as being only 16% or so out of compliance. I notified this Code Officer in writing of my objections, and he "ducked" his mail several times until I served him with written notice at his home address. This is when I fully realized the common and life threatening "slack" involved in these fire safety matters, an issue at the very heart of professional engineering licensing, namely protection of public safety.

It is my legal position that immediate protection of the lives of the public required addressing these concerns to more than just the owners and Station Manager. The concerns were immediate, time sensitive, and this was no time for "secrets" or confidentiality, in my Professional Engineering opinion. Protection of life was my paramount and immediate concern. I genuinely felt the threat of criminal prosecution for criminal negligence should another fire break out and someone should die in Bouchard's fire traps due to inaction.

I realized that a serious entity needed to be created for public fire safety, and this is when I started the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute with my opening salvo being a formal complaint against the Professional Engineer whose P.E. stamp I saw on the new Bouchard building plans when I first visited the Code Enforcement Officer's office. He, by the way, is also a licensed ham radio operator. His alleged representation to the Complaint Officer of this P.E. Board that he advised me that the new Bouchard building met code is simply not true! He agreed with me that the building was out of code by about 16% but that he had issued a "waiver." This, plus Mr. Bouchard introducing me to a phony Code Officer just before I was "fired" (a crime I reported to the Augusta Police) was the real driving force behind the newly created Fire Hazard Reduction Institute and also started me on a new and exciting professional career as a Certified Fire Safety Advisor.

The Fire Hazard Reduction Institute has uncovered other evidence and testimony about more fire safety code violation issues in Maine in addition to this Board choosing to dismiss out of hand Respondent's formal Complaint. Even new Board member William A. Lotz, P.E. stated during the 19 January 2006 Board meeting that he has personally observed numerous situations that are in FLAGRANT fire code violation here in Maine.

I feel that if I didn't do everything in my power to bring these life threatening violations to light, I would not be living up to my ethical responsibility as a Licensed Professional Engineer, if not also being criminally negligent, should anyone ever be killed in one of Mr. Bouchard's or someone else's fire traps. I don't feel that (or it is not my legal position that) Professional Engineering client confidentiality applies here since I did file a formal Complaint (available to the PUBLIC) with this Board AFTER being "fired" by Mr. Bouchard with my genuine concerns being consistent with being denied my statutory right to cross examine and subpoena witnesses in my "test case" unemployment claim hearing where Mrs. Bouchard even perjured herself; this also being consistent with my Complaint to the Maine Overseers of the Bar regarding an illegal and totally false ex-parte letter (de facto to the Hearing Officer - a clear violation of Maine bar rules) being filed by Bouchard's attorney, Robert Stolt, also being dismissed out of hand (by the Maine Overseers of the Bar).

To get this (affront to justice) officially in before of the Overseers' supervisory authority, the Maine Supreme Judicial Court, Respondent brought a civil action in Superior Court against Mr. Stolt which was dismissed (surprise, surprise!) and then appealed to the Maine Supreme Judicial Court, also dismissed on the de facto bogus grounds that Mr. Stolt's ex-parte letter was privileged (it was, of course, that wasn't the point; it clearly voilated bar rules, and the Overseers didn't do their job to discipline Maine licensed Attorney Robert Stolt; point made to the honorable Maine Supreme Court justices, QED I think!)

Indeed, since this Board voted in a public meeting attended by the Complainant's apparent representative, Ralph Myra, K1IV, (and thus now probably reported on world wide amateur radio short wave as well as over the world wide internet) to fine me $1,500 (via a Board proposed consent agreement) for making an alleged false formal Complaint about the Maine Professional Engineer who wrongly approved the out of code Bouchard building plans, I am hereby publishing this reply document on the internet as well (to protect my professional reputation) at also world wide www.K1MAN.com. (and also in the public interest of exposing these very dangerous and - life threatening to the public - and commonly found conditions now in Maine - and most other states - and illustrated - for Maine - above).

Wherefore, Respondent respectfully declines to sign the proposed consent agreement and pay the proposed $1,500 fine,

and

Respondent moves the Board to Dismiss this Complaint

or

Respondent requests a full hearing,

and

Respondent requests this Board to reopen the Respondent's Complaint about the Bouchard unsafe and dangerous to the public fire traps (in my Professional Engineering opinion).

Respectfully submitted,

Certified Fire Safety Advisor

SECOND MOTION TO DISMISS,

or

SECOND REQUEST FOR HEARING

Respondent, Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., hereby comes through this pleading and makes this sworn affidavit of his own personal knowledge.

INTRODUCTION

The original Brian Crow "Complaint" has essentially been dismissed by the Board with the focus now being on general discharge issues with a former employer, Ray Bouchard, and a Complaint made by Respondent to the Board against the Professional Engineer whose P.E. stamp was on

Bouchard's new building plans which are in clear fire code violation according to a representation made to Respondent by the Augusta Code Enforcement Officer. This latter Complaint was dismissed by the Board on the curious grounds that said engineer "was not involved," an issue now being formally investigated by the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute, Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., Executive Director.

1. Respondent is currently d/b/a as Executive Director of the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute and is a Certified Fire Safety Advisor with hundreds of inspections and fire safety installations already made throughout Maine and the primary source of professional income since FHRI's inception shortly after Respondent was "fired" from Ray Bouchard's Light of Life Ministries and Christian radio stations in Augusta, Maine.

2. Respondent was hired by Mr. Bouchard in 2003 to be his "Chief Engineer" in the radio sense of the term "engineer" on the strength of Respondent's First Class Commercial Radiotelephone(1) and Amateur Extra Class FCC licenses, 16 years of experience in designing and operating a multi transmitter short wave station heard world wide (with an ID announcer being former CBS Newsman Walter Cronkite, who is also a licensed amateur radio operator), many years of professional experience in electronics repair and engineering modifications to Collins high frequency equipment, the design for in house manufacturing of electro-mechanical filters (equivalent to Collins mechanical filters) which were the very "heart" of 750 low frequency receivers custom made for our U.S. submarine fleet, and design and installation of many radio tower and antenna installations.

Respondent has a B.S. Degree in Industrial Engineering (January 1968) from the University of Rhode Island and is a Registered Professional Engineer by examination in that specialty in Illinois, and by reciprocity in Maine.

Respondent has completed significant course work in electrical engineering and has published several articles in the area of physics, chemistry, and the theory of relativity, as well as teaching high school physics, chemistry, and advanced math.

3. Unknown to the Respondent, Mr. Bouchard did not have adequate finances to do most of the projects worked on, and the Station Manager advised Respondent of this fact in detail after the time of hiring. Apparently, Mr. Bouchard really hired Respondent to train a high school junior for six months in electronics and engineering so that this person could assume the job of permanent Chief Engineer at minimum wage or less, since common practice at the station was to work full time and be paid for far less time than actually worked.

For example, Mr. Bouchard constructed the whole station himself, and there were no wiring diagrams or schematics of any of the maze of wire interconnects present in his broadcast station. Respondent strongly recommended making such diagrams and schematics, and Mr.

Bouchard insisted that Respondent do this work on Respondent's "own time," which Respondent declined under these circumstances. Lack of these diagrams and schematics would naturally create a "night mare" for Respondent when there was an equipment failure, as actually happened and has become a subject of the current Complaint against the Respondent.

4. Respondent never received a written job description until a few days before being "fired." The paper signed by Respondent at the time of hiring gives an incorrect impression that there ever was a written job description. The actual job description was verbal and changed on a continuing basis and included:

o Training and supervising the high school junior

o Organizing the relocation of the FM transmitter site

o Design and construction of the new transmitter site

o Starting and running an electronics school

o Negotiating with Salvation Army and private owners regarding proposed translator sites

o Repairs to station equipment

o Negotiation for a cooperative venture in training recent jail released persons.

o Erecting the first translator tower

o Negotiating the price of custom designed antennas

o Negotiating the price for purchase of station equipment

o Salvaging donated towers and equipment.

o Trouble shooting a recently installed repeater

o Selling unwanted equipment on E-Bay

o Consulting with professional consultants

o Making transmitter compliance measurements

When the owner of the FM transmitter location asked "Where is Glenn?", Mr. Bouchard said "He was let go because he wasn't following his job description." Respondent demanded in writing a retraction, and never got one from Mr. Bouchard.

5. Respondent had a computer in his engineering office (found out later to be illegally occupied per the REAL Code Enforcement Officer - Respondent was introduced to a phony "Code Enforcement Officer" minutes before being "fired(2)" -) with all work done for 2003 on a single disk. This disk was loaded into the central office computer as a back up and so some printing could be done on the

6. Respondent wore many hats and relied on different credentials at different times. For example, during the tower erection, Respondent relied on previous tower erection experience with the guy anchoring scheme being standard amateur radio practice and right out of the ARRL antenna handbook(3). The design of the tower system was not a Professional Engineering design, although a progress report was written in a document signed by the Respondent who happens to be a Professional Engineer as opposed to "as a Professional Engineer."

7. Note there is nothing in the above list of job descriptions regarding contact with the FCC or obtaining a required construction permit from the FCC. When Respondent realized that there were serious FCC violations being made by Mr. Bouchard, I brought this to the attention of the station Manager who advised me to protect my personal commercial FCC license which I did by reporting the violations to the FCC immediately, both to mitigate the damages for my employer and to eliminate the danger, as Chief Engineer, and the legal FCC interpretation of this, to my FCC commercial license.

8. At no time did I ever disclose confidential information to anyone in violation of Professional Engineering ethics as apparently alleged by Mr. Bouchard.

9. Although apparently dismissed by the Board, Respondent hereby addresses the "Nazi" comment. Respondent is a world wide short wave celebrity with a daily radio program often containing robust editorials. Respondent often publishes editorials on the internet. One amateur radio data base at www.QRZ.com decided, for "hobby politics," reasons to de-list Respondent's radio call sign K1MAN. About 1000 persons posted comments, many to the effect that Respondent does not deserve to have a listing on www.QRZ.com which uses public FCC data as its basis. Making an editorial point, Respondent compared a list of commenter's call signs with being tantamount to membership in the "American Amateur Nazi Party." There is no such animal, of course. "Nazi" was later changed to "Nerd." One on the list was apparently a P.E. in California, something unknown to the Respondent and not really relevant to this current "Complaint."

8. As a Professional Engineer, I notified the owner and three other Managers of serious fire hazards at the station shortly after the AM transmitter caught fire under the stairs of the only exit to the "fire death trap" old building. That old building, curiously, met the code, but the new building did not meet code according to the REAL Code Enforcement Officer who, somewhat embarrassed, dismissed it as being only 16% or so out of compliance. I notified this Code Officer in writing of my objections, and he "ducked" his mail several times until I served him with written notice at his home address. This is when I fully realized the common and life threatening "slack" involved in these fire safety matters, an issue at the very heart of professional engineering licensing, namely protection of public safety.

It is my legal position that immediate protection of the lives of the public required addressing these concerns to more than just the owners and Station Manager. The concerns were immediate, time sensitive, and this was no time for "secrets" or confidentiality, in my Professional Engineering opinion. Protection of life was my paramount and immediate concern. I genuinely felt the threat of criminal prosecution for criminal negligence should another fire break out and someone should die in Bouchard's fire traps due to inaction.

I realized that a serious entity needed to be created for public fire safety, and this is when I started the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute with my opening salvo being a formal complaint against the Professional Engineer whose P.E. stamp I saw on the new Bouchard building plans when I first visited the Code Enforcement Officer's office. This, plus Mr. Bouchard introducing me to a phony Code Officer just before I was "fired" (a crime I reported to the Augusta Police) was the real driving force behind the newly created Fire Hazard Reduction Institute and also started me on a new and exciting professional career as a Certified Fire Safety Advisor.

The Fire Hazard Reduction Institute has uncovered other evidence and testimony about more fire safety code violation issues in Maine in addition to this Board choosing to dismiss out of hand Respondent's formal Complaint. K1MAN BULLETIN - B060121B -

GLENN A. BAXTER, P.E., K1MAN, BEFORE THE MAINE
BOARD OF LICENSURE FOR PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS

Dateline, 19 January 2006, Augusta, Maine.

The Maine Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers met today to discuss a "Complaint" against Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., K1MAN, brought by Brian Crow, K3VR. Crow's apparent "representative," Ralph Myra, K1IV, attended this important board meeting and took copious notes.

Mr. Baxter also attended as well as a number of other engineers, observers, board members, and their attorney from the Maine Office of the Attorney General. Mr. Baxter could only observe and was not allowed to speak at this stage of the standard Maine Rules of Administrative Procedure.

The Complaint Officer, Stephen W. Cole, P.E., presented the 18 inch thick file in this case to the Board and there was robust discussion and debate among board members for about 90 minutes. The Assistant Attorney General stated that she had spent many months and countless hours on this "Complaint" by Mr. Crow, and the Complaint Officer indicated that he had done the same. One board member, William A. Lotz, P.E., (all board members are licensed Professional Engineers) stated that this case reminded him of the Ken Starr investigation of President Clinton where the net result was to find some presidential semen on Monica Lewinsky's dress.

"The board was presented with reams of incorrect and false evidence," according to Mr. Baxter, "most notably, false and misleading testimony by the Code Enforcement Officer in Augusta, Maine who has been under investigation by the Fire Hazard Reduction Institute, a bona fide safety organization where I serve as its Executive Director. Based on this false and misleading evidence, the Board wrongly concluded that our 2003 Complaint to the Board about the Professional Engineer who approved the out of code building plans for Ray Bouchard's new building at Light of Life Ministries and Christian radio stations was improperly made, and the Board voted to offer to settle the matter by asking us to sign a consent agreement admitting "improper action" and to pay a $1,500 fine. The alleged improper action was filing the Complaint after being told by the Code Enforcement Officer that the Bouchard fire trap met state fire codes. Exactly the reverse was the case. The building did not, in fact, meet state fire codes; it is a fire trap in our Professional Engineering opinion," Mr. Baxter went on to say in an interview. "The Code Enforcement Officer admitted to me that the building DID NOT meet the code and that he had issued a 'waiver.' Our formal Complaint against the Professional Engineer who approved the out of code building plans is entirely appropriate. Assistant Attorney General Judith Peters now agrees with me on this very important point," Mr. Baxter went on to say.

After Ralph Myra left the meeting, the Assistant Attorney General and the Board's Executive Director, Warren Foster, P.E., granted a Baxter Motion for Discovery and he (Baxter) will be allowed to inspect and copy the entire files in both cases including hundreds of E-Mails.

Mr. Baxter has filed (by FAX) the attached reply affidavit with the Board and the Maine Assistant Attorney General, Judith Peters. "Ms. Peters called me right back," Mr. Baxter said, "and it looks like we will be able to get the entire and bogus Crow "Complaint" dismissed. She wants to meet with Stephen W. Cole, P.E. (the Complaint Officer), and me in about two weeks to discuss these new facts which have just been brought to light and for possible final adjudication at the next Board meeting in six months.

If we do go to a full hearing before the Board, Ms. Peters confirmed that I will be allowed to subpoena whatever witnesses that I want to. After such a hearing, where Ms. Peters, an attorney, would be the Hearing Officer, the case (by Maine law) would go to trial in District Court." Again, Mr. Baxter would be allowed to subpoena whatever witnesses he wanted to.

"I am so pleased that the Administrative legal system and court system here in Maine are finally showing some robust signs of integrity; it is so great to be an American; it is so great to live in Maine. Let them eat Crow," Mr. Baxter said, apparently referring to the Complainant, Brian L. Crow, K3VR.

Steve, why would a person agree to an apology which they've denied ever needing to be made and one which they didn't author themselves?

Sounds kind of crazy to me. Are you crazy?

Yes, Davies you were a patient at the mental health facility in Independence, Iowa. This was after your mom caught you stealing money from her purse and you beat her up.
At least Roger served, Davies, you were too mentally ill to even be in the military.
Not that you would, you run away and hide when people actually knock on your door of that HUD apartment, when Oris stoipped by during Xmas. But you were also a no-show at Dalton hamfest, too.

It wouldn't suprise me if he included the insult "faggot" in an apology.

And Steve says he will abide by an apology he didn't make?

He sure stands firmly on high moral ground. Hi, hi!

This is the part that puzzles me.

Steve goes on year long rants, calling people liars and cowards for having an opinion that he doesn't like.

But someone calls Michigan authorities in his name, posts apologies with his name, callsign and email address, and he seems to be good with it.

This should cause him great concern, but it's not a problem. Why is that?

But he jumps on an apology that he doesn't agree with and didn't make???

Absolutely.

You do have to wonder why he's got no problem at all with people impersonating him on the wed and on the telephone to Michigan authorities.

But disagree with him just once and he lights up like the fourth of july.

Steve can't change his spots. He just made homosexual inuendo remarks to Todd.

There must be an explanation why he isn't upset that people are impersonating him to the Michigan authorities and on the web, when he gets so upset about everything else.

He's probably been that route before. I'm guessing that's why he's three years shy of a retirement.

indeed

trying to sort out which staments are the lies and which thruth in anything steve post is a nightmare loook at flpflops on Sueing from it is waiting to already filed he has sais it all you know he accused me once of having multiple personalites. I t certainly would explain a lot if it were more of his projection

if he has seeral seperate personalities in theat head of his the whole thing would make a lot more sense

even to just the extext of saying the glass is 700 percent full rather than absolutely full remmebr when he and Dan were syaing I hated Radio beucause becuse I was dispointed in Ham effort while absultely apalled by the reaction/action of the paid officails

and yes I think the ARS should done better in Katrina, alot better byut the response of the Govt's involved was absolute failure

they found the atter insufiecent indeed they agreed he was lyig in His claim that he would be fired for telling a man that he kneww was going to die "you are goig to be fine"

agreed with me that telling himthat was steve jobs

they allso agreed if I had access to steve complaint sign steve J robeson LPN then Id have something steve is dancing right at the edge meaning heknows well where that edge is meaning he is pushing t and he knows it

I certainly have heard rumors to that effect

Id refine that guess he was threatened with it but they lacked

Like his old comments to Len about what happens when someone shoots their mouth off.

Yeh, probably within 5 minutes. It's the forms that are complicated.

Wait a minute, Markie...

One minute you're accusing people of "hiding" from you if they don't respond to one of your rants within 30 seconds, then you're fending off any discussions.

What's your problem? Confused? Sure looks that way!

> > Do you think you can

You've been demanding answers from Dave about me all week...Why shouldn't Dave be able to expect YOU to answer some questions?

Because in answering a direct question with a direct answer, you don't wind up looking like a sandlot punk throwing gradeschool epithets at your adversaries....Like right now, for example.

Of course they'd find anything you said insufficient, Markie...

And of course you never DID file a "complaint" with the TN Borad of Nursing...Or any OTHER board for that matter.

Mark, WHY do you make such blatant lies in public?

At least I can dance, Markie...I freestyle roller skate, too.

I wonder what YOU would look like on skates!

Meaning you're makie stuff up as you go and it's so transparent that everyone EXCEPT you can see through it.

As far as an "apology" goes, you're right...I have nothing to apologize to you for.

Nope. I told the truth. I wasn't the author of the original piece but I was willing to MAKE some peace with Markie.

Of course Markie choked on the honesty of my relvelation and willingness to do what I said I would...And I DID exactly what I said I would..for LONGER than I promised.

What's a "phyrink"...?!?!?

The bottom line is that an opportunity to "make nice" was made available and you defacated all over it, Markie...And then Brain tried to fingerpaint with it.

Bascially, the two of you wound up looking idiotic again.

Ditto. And I gotta add my two pieces of zinc:

You don't need a license to build a receiver. You don't need a license to listen to shortwave broadcasts; or to work a CB or FRS radio; or to get a station's card (I have hundreds); or to transmit on most of the spectrum with very low power; or to design and build a band-specific antenna on a tower; or to study and learn radio fundamentals; or even to transmit from a licensed amateur station provided it is supervised by the station's licensee. You don't need a license to be an amateur.
Even as a PROFESSIONAL in the field of radio I didn't need a license.
Basically, the only thing an Amateur Radio License grants you is the ability to transmit at power levels greater than those specified in Part 15. Every other aspect of amateur radio communication can be done
-WITHOUT A LICENSE-. The sooner these sooper-dooper hambos realize this little factoid the better.

You claim that you were never a reservist:

"From 03 September 1974 to 29 May 1992 I was on active duty. Nothing else."

Source:
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.policy/msg/9358a82736e89c03?hl=en&

Yet you also claim to have served with 1st Batallion 24th Marines:

Source:
http://web6.military.com/HomePage/UnitPageBulletinBoard/1,13492,500081%7C775810%7CM,00.htm
l

That unit is part of the 4th Marine Division -- i.e, the Reserves.
Even the Batallion CO is a Reservist. So either you lied about serving with 1/24 or you lied about not being in the Reserves. Since both claims are mutually exclusive, at least one of your claims must be false. That's absolute proof that you are a liar, Dudly.

I do, however, tend to believe that you were a Reservist. You were discharged after 18 years. If you -were- on active duty that would mean you were only two years away from retirement with full benefits.
Not even an idiot would quit with 2 years left.

During Desert Storm, 1/24 was sent -not- to Iraq, but to Okinawa:

Source:
http://1stbattalion3rdmarines.com/marine-units-histories/24th_marine.htm

You also admit to going to Oki.

Omigosh, looks like you are a closet CBer!!! Either that or you were masquerading as one, which is far more likely. I wonder what your hambo buddies think about THAT!!! Anyway.....

So Dudly the wannabe-hero gets shipped to Japan while the war is happening in the Middle East. Do you feel that you were denied the honor and recognition that you think you deserve? Or were you just denied the opportunity to be a hero? Must have been devastating for you, Dud, having to come back and face the same people you lied to when you told all those tall tales of your war exploits and acts of "uncommon valor". It's so much easier to maintain the lie than to fess up and risk losing what little respect you mistakenly think people have for you. Is that why your wife dumped you, Dud? She got tired of all the lies? Can't really blame her..... but you did anyway. Always someone else's fault, isn't it? Everyone else lies except you, right?

Poor, poor Dudly..... too much pride to admit that his courage was never tested, yet too much cowardice to face the consequences of that pride. But I'm sure you will find a way to justify this conflict, both in the newsgroup and in your own mind. Meanwhile, I'll be back quiet and continue watching your emotional meltdown. Enjoy.

No such "claim" exists, Frankie. Not in that URL, not ANYwhere!

> That unit is part of the 4th Marine Division -- i.e, the Reserves.
> Even the Batallion CO is a Reservist. So either you lied about serving > with 1/24 or you lied about not being in the Reserves. Since both

ANYONE who reads the post I made on the bulletin board of 1/24
will NOT find a SINGLE WORD that says "I served with 1st Batallion 24th Marines". Not even a HINT.

What they WILL find is a "cc"'d copy of a letter I wrote to the editor of a paper that had written an article that told of the UAW's refusal to allow Marines of 1/24 to park their non-US built vehicles on their lot across from the 1/24 Armory.

Here. Allow me to copy it directly:

QUOTE:

Parking Lot Flap

A Letter To The Editor: Dear Mr. Mayne, I've been searching for a new vehicle and had been 99% decided on a new Ford Ranger or F-150 even though I liked the design of a certain foreign truck just because I wanted to Buy American. Now I will reconsider. And on the bumper of that new vehicle, whatever it may ultimately be, will be a new bumper sticker of my own making: UAW can KMA. I am sure the meaning is clear. Semper Fidelis. STEVEN J ROBESON, LPN Gunnery Sergeant, USMC(ret'd) Winchester, TN

UNQUOTE

You're welcome to point out the part that allegedly says "I Was A Part of the 1st Bn 24th Marines"

The story about the parking lot flap was covered by several of the on-line news servers and CNN, by the way, Frankie.

Now...WHERE did I allegedly say "I Served With 1stBn 24th Marines"...?!?!?

And don't you think that if I had made some outlanding claim of being a member of their unit in MARCH of 2005 that SOMEONE from 1/24 would have responded and said "Who Are You To Claim You Were Ever In This Unit..?!?!"

> That's absolute proof that you are a liar, Dudly.

No...YOUR attempt to suggest that the "letter to the editor" in support of the Marines of 1/24 over parking thier non-US built vehicles in that UAW parking lot is the "absolute proof" that YOU are the liar.

As if more was needed.....

> I do, however, tend to believe that you were a Reservist.

You "believe" that because it serves to fit your stories. It's still wrong.

> You were > discharged after 18 years. If you -were- on active duty that would > mean you were only two years away from retirement with full benefits.
> Not even an idiot would quit with 2 years left.

Since you were not party to the arrangements, Frankie, the only IDIOT here appears to be you.

> During Desert Storm, 1/24 was sent -not- to Iraq, but to Okinawa:

OK. So?

> Source:
> http://1stbattalion3rdmarines.com/marine-units-histories/24th_marine.htm

> You also admit to going to Oki.

Yep. But not in 1990. I was just RETURNING from my last Oki tour in the spring of 90.

> Source:
> http://groups.google.com/group/alt.radio.family/msg/ef93ab392f52965f?hl=en&

Uh huh. First time with HMH-462 in 1980.

Then again with HMH-363 in 1981. I went back to Oki in 89 with HMH-363 and cross decked to 361, staying a year.

> Omigosh, looks like you are a closet CBer!!!

Nope.

I've openly addressed using CB radio on numerous occassions. It has it's uses. I own both 11 meter and FRS radios.

CB was how I met the first Amateur I ever knew and eventually got into Amateur Radio.

I've never said otherwise.

> Either that or you were > masquerading as one, which is far more likely. I wonder what your > hambo buddies think about THAT!!! Anyway.....

Gee, Frankie...Just a couple weeks ago YOU were alluding to being an "extra"...

Of course you didn't state "extra" WHAT, but then it doesn't matter.

However almost everyone here (RRAP) has acknowledged some CB radio use in the past or present.

Your point?

> So Dudly the wannabe-hero gets shipped to Japan while the war is > happening in the Middle East. Do you feel that you were denied the > honor and recognition that you think you deserve?

Boy-oh-boy do I see some PROJECTION there!

Frankie, the Twice Court Martialed In One Tour ex-Marine trying DESPERATELY to make amends withn his own soul for the Marine Corps career that never happened because he was too irresponsible to do it right the FIRST time....

> Or were you just denied the opportunity to be a hero?

Funny thing about "heros", Frankie...If you ever get a chance to talk to one who, by virtue of appropriate award, is what we define as a
"hero", none of them will tell you that what they did was "heroic", nor did they feel that way before, during or since that event.

I did my job, Frankie, and I did it well. I was never a "poster Marine", but neither was I Gomer Pyle or a non-hacking little puke like
you. Not even so much as an on-base parking ticket.

> Must have been devastating for > you, Dud, having to come back and face the same people you lied to > when you told all those tall tales of your war exploits and acts of > "uncommon valor".

Whelp...There's yet another point at which you and I diverge, Your Pukiness. I didn't have to make up any lies to tell. I go just the other way...I just don't care to talk about it.

> It's so much easier to maintain the lie than to fess
> up and risk losing what little respect you mistakenly think people > have for you.

I guess I could follow in YOUR (and Lennie's...) footsteps and just quote from various Clancy novels and USMC manuals in CB and Ham Radio related newsgroups and wait for the "oooooohs" and "ahhhhhhh" to start pouring in...

But on the other hand....no.

> Is that why your wife dumped you, Dud? She got tired of > all the lies? Can't really blame her..... but you did anyway. Always

Gee, Frankie...I'm married to the same woman I was married to when Desert Shield / Desert Storm was happening. Married her BEFORE "The Storm". We've been through some storms of our own in the meantime.

Where'd you get that "she dumped you" song and dance?

From Markie's posts...?!?!

BBBWWWHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA
HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA
!!!

(I love it when one Feeble Five idiot depends on another for "facts"...The results are ALWAYS hillarious!)

No emotional meltdown, Frankie! Just a good, deep-in-the-gut belly laugh at yet another of your wild ###ed "I Have To Prove I Was A Better Marine Than Any Marine Ever Was" stories.

Now, go back up and prove to us where I allegedly said I was a member of 1st Bn 24th Marines and how my letter to the editor about parking lots is in any way-shape-or-form substantiates your blatant lies, deceit and bull####.

You're a punk, Frankie, and you just proved it again.

Thanks!

You and Frankie are his understudies, Markie!

Instead of making posts that expose your stupidity, why not put
"Walter Mitty" in your search engine and look it up?

It was ALREADY "Markie Mularkie".

And besides, Markie, after the events of the last week, I don't put a penny's worth of stock in a single thing you say, and that's down from the nickle I might have invested before the weekend.

You did nothing of the kind. The "letter" from Tennessee does not Actually the entertaining part is Frankie trying to insist that I "claim" I was something I never claimed just because I wrote a letter to the editor and "cc'd" a copy to a Marine Reserve unit's bulletin board.

No such "claim" exists, Frankie. Not in that URL, not ANYwhere!

> Even the Batallion CO is a Reservist. So either you lied about serving

ANYONE who reads the post I made on the bulletin board of 1/24
will NOT find a SINGLE WORD that says "I served with 1st Batallion 24th Marines". Not even a HINT.

What they WILL find is a "cc"'d copy of a letter I wrote to the editor of a paper that had written an article that told of the UAW's refusal to allow Marines of 1/24 to park their non-US built vehicles on their lot across from the 1/24 Armory.

Here. Allow me to copy it directly:

QUOTE:

Parking Lot Flap

A Letter To The Editor: Dear Mr. Mayne, I've been searching for a new vehicle and had been 99% decided on a new Ford Ranger or F-150 even though I liked the design of a certain foreign truck just because I wanted to Buy American. Now I will reconsider. And on the bumper of that new vehicle, whatever it may ultimately be, will be a new bumper sticker of my own making: UAW can KMA. I am sure the meaning is clear. Semper Fidelis. STEVEN J ROBESON, LPN Gunnery Sergeant, USMC(ret'd) Winchester, TN

UNQUOTE

You're welcome to point out the part that allegedly says "I Was A Part of the 1st Bn 24th Marines"

The story about the parking lot flap was covered by several of the

on-line news servers and CNN, by the way, Frankie.

Now...WHERE did I allegedly say "I Served With 1stBn 24th Marines"...?!?!?

And don't you think that if I had made some outlanding claim of being a member of their unit in MARCH of 2005 that SOMEONE from 1/24 would have responded and said "Who Are You To Claim You Were Ever In This Unit..?!?!"

> That's absolute proof that you are a liar, Dudly.

No...YOUR attempt to suggest that the "letter to the editor" in support of the Marines of 1/24 over parking thier non-US built vehicles in that UAW parking lot is the "absolute proof" that YOU are the liar.

As if more was needed.......

> I do, however, tend to believe that you were a Reservist.

You "believe" that because it serves to fit your stories. It's still wrong.

> You were > discharged after 18 years. If you -were- on active duty that would

Since you were not party to the arrangements, Frankie, the only IDIOT here appears to be you.

Yep. But not in 1990. I was just RETURNING from my last Oki tour in the spring of 90.

Uh huh. First time with HMH-462 in 1980.

Then again with HMH-363 in 1981. I went back to Oki in 89 with HMH-363 and cross decked to 361, staying a year.

> Omigosh, looks like you are a closet CBer!!!

Nope.

I've openly addressed using CB radio on numerous occassions. It has it's uses. I own both 11 meter and FRS radios.

CB was how I met the first Amateur I ever knew and eventually got into Amateur Radio.

I've never said otherwise.

> Either that or you were

Gee, Frankie...Just a couple weeks ago YOU were alluding to being
an "extra"...

Of course you didn't state "extra" WHAT, but then it doesn't matter.

However almost everyone here (RRAP) has acknowledged some CB radio

use in the past or present.

Your point?

> So Dudly the wannabe-hero gets shipped to Japan while the war is

Boy-oh-boy do I see some PROJECTION there!

Frankie, the Twice Court Martialed In One Tour ex-Marine trying DESPERATELY to make amends withn his own soul for the Marine Corps
career that never happened because he was too irresponsible to do it right the FIRST time....

> Or were you just denied the opportunity to be a hero?

Funny thing about "heros", Frankie...If you ever get a chance to talk to one who, by virtue of appropriate award, is what we define as a

"hero", none of them will tell you that what they did was "heroic", nor

did they feel that way before, during or since that event.

I did my job, Frankie, and I did it well. I was never a "poster Marine", but neither was I Gomer Pyle or a non-hacking little puke like

you. Not even so much as an on-base parking ticket.

> Must have been devastating for

Whelp...There's yet another point at which you and I diverge, Your

Pukiness. I didn't have to make up any lies to tell. I go just the other way...I just don't care to talk about it.

> It's so much easier to maintain the lie than to fess

I guess I could follow in YOUR (and Lennie's...) footsteps and just quote from various Clancy novels and USMC manuals in CB and Ham Radio related newsgroups and wait for the "oooooohs" and "ahhhhhhh" to start pouring in...

But on the other hand....no.

> Is that why your wife dumped you, Dud? She got tired of

Gee, Frankie...I'm married to the same woman I was married to when Desert Shield / Desert Storm was happening. Married her BEFORE "The Storm". We've been through some storms of our own in the meantime.

Where'd you get that "she dumped you" song and dance?

No emotional meltdown, Frankie! Just a good, deep-in-the-gut
belly laugh at yet another of your wild ###ed "I Have To Prove I Was A Better Marine Than Any Marine Ever Was" stories.

Now, go back up and prove to us where I allegedly said I was a member of 1st Bn 24th Marines and how my letter to the editor about parking lots is in any way-shape-or-form substantiates your blatant lies, deceit and bull####.

You're a punk, Frankie, and you just proved it again.

SO little power that, if you do so legally, can't be heard across the parking lot, let alone across town, state or country...

Which means NOT you or Lennie, Frankie.

More wordsmithing.

You DO need a licesne to be a Radio Amateur.

You do NOT need a license to be a radio hobbyist.

Frankie, you can wear a biklini, play a fiddle while sipping a milk shake, do charitable church work and recite "I Want World Peace" over and over, and you'll still not going to be "Miss America".

And no amount of rationalizing or tap-dancing about what you can do without an Amateur license will ever make you or Lennie licensed Radio Amateurs. Only passing the requisite FCC exams at a VE session will ever do that.

And Frankie...

No amount of trying to "best" another Marine will ever make up for the ####-poor performance YOU put out.

Putz.

First of all, nothing was obtained from you "by fraud".

I made no such "attacks".

Not one "Markie Mualrkie" post was made...Not one retort, insinuation or other negative post was made in that period other than to point out YOUR refusing to do what YOU said you'd do.

> > For three days I did exactly what I said I'd do. I did exactly

You've done nothing to show "she" is a "she"...Not a name, a picuture, etc....As a matter of fact, in the last few days, you've even made statements that call into question whether or not you're married, refering to her instead as your "girfriend".

Here's a suggestion...

A picture of the two of you together, you holding up a current newspaper and her a sign that says "My name is !@#$%^ and I am Mark's Wife". Then scan it in and we'll apologize.

Otherwise, it's just a ruse on your part.

I've said it over and over, ya blithering idiot...Don't bring it

There was not one iota of dishonesty in the entire evolution, Markie. As a matter of fact, YOU are making even MORE "afttkc thrads" based upon my having been honest in pointing out that I was not the author.

So it appears, on many, MANY levels, that honesty means nothing to Come clean about what?

Something came to me in that response...And that is that no matter how many times in any one day YOU showered...no matter how many times you bathed, flossed, brushed, or otherwise engaged in hygenic practices, you'll still be a liar, and that will NEVER wash off, Markie.

And by the way, Frankie...

I see you took time to answer THIS post, but avoided the one wherein you desperately need to dislodge your head from your rectal

Guess that had to hurt, though...But it could have been avoided by NOT publishing a post that was so blatantly stupid in the first

Seems you've proven MY assertions about your having never spent a day in a uniform of the Armed Forces. "Screwed the pooch" is a common phrase for having done something so obviously stupid or so royaly as to have defied common sense.

But then, you ARE one of the Feeble Five yourself.

Because Frankie wants to make a point that it's possible to operate an unlicensed transmitter on HF spectrum. That's true.

However at those power levels one cannot communicate effectively and consistently.

If all you want to do is be able to claim you radiate RF on HF, be my guest...Fire up all the Part 15 transmitters you want to in any mode you want to.

Good luck.

Me neither. Nor the profanity and disrespect for the dead.

I thought that the "truce" thing would work, but guess I was way over-optomistic.

It's tough to get a real "policy" issue in here, Jim.

I've never seen a policy issue thread go more than four evolutions before one of the Feeble Five (one in particular) has pulled it into yet another beating of the Morse Code test issue...

Not BPL, spectrum protection, emergency net operations, etc.

I don't use Outlook Express, however I guess I ought to try it.
Of course with Markie creating a new screen name every 3 days, it will be a job in-and-of-itself to keep those in the filter.

Have you seen his latest incarnation, "acryfordecency"...?!?! Is that about as ironic as it gets, or what...?!?!

So, 'Old Friend' do yourself a favor and just quit!!!

Denial is the biggest cause of alcoholism.

Your suggestion might carry more weight if you were preaching to both side of the isle, Jim.

Change of subject, eh, Frankie..?!?!

Ya came out swinging with that "big revelation" of yours about how
I allegedly claimed to have served with 1/24, yet haven't addressed the FACT that you were AGAIN wrong.

Sheeeeeeesh.

I'd think you'd get tired of getting slapped around with your own stupidity by now...

But it appears you ahve a lot more of it to spread around.

The "idiot" is the one making "assertions of fact" that are not factual, "Jim", ie: Miss Silliland's assertions that I "claimed" to be a member of a USMC Reserve unit that I was never a member of just because I posted a note on a bulletin board they run.

And the "old threads (that) were buried" were dreged up by your Miss Silliland herself.

I had not directed a post to Silliland...She opened that round.

So if you want to address "idiots" and #####'s, Silliland is the one you need to direct ALL your comments to.

You can easily prevent Mark's posts from ever being seen again, no matter what screen name he chooses to use. It's done by means of a set of rules that many newsreaders will accept. If in doubt, you can always download and start using the free news reader called xnews, because it can filter on any header, and because it also understands regular expressions if they are used in a rule.

First, I killfile all posts which originate at usenetzone.com, no matter who wrote them. The rule looks like

Path: news\.usenetzone\.com![^!]+$

I also killfile all posts from usenetserver.com and some other free servers with similar rules. I then killfile things specific to Mark, with rules like NNTP-Posting-Host: ^66\.82\.

which kills his posts through Google, based upon his Direcpc IP address. There's also the usual in the set of rules as a kind of backup rule. It kills all posts which contain the text "kb9rqz" anywhere in the From header, without regard for case.

From: kb9rqz

Finally, I have the newsreader kill all followups to Mark's posts, so that I don't have to see his posts quoted by someone else. That's done by adding a filter which is based upon the References header, but I'll keep that to myself for the moment (I don't want Mark to have too much information).

Getting rid of Mark (or anyone else for that matter) is easily done if you really want to do it. My question is: Do you really want to, or are you actually enjoying his garbage in the group?

I'd be willing to bet that it's the latter which is the real truth.

Propogation on the band is consistent enough for the government to have used it for radionavigation and emergency communications networks for several -decades-; regardless.....

http://home.att.net/~weatheradio/part15.htm

And I make consistent contacts with another lowfer about 80 miles to my SSW (basaltic soil seems to provide an excellent medium for ground-wave propogation, although snow is better and salt-water is -much- better). My ERP is 0.031 watts.

Your imaginary lawyer has been the subject for quite some time.

Doesn't matter if I was right or wrong -- you've already proven that you never served at all. It's just too much fun to watch you fabricate justifications and excuses for your contradictions, and I have a few days off from work, so I thought I'd rattle your cage a bit. You never Imaginary?

His new wife will be interested to know she's been sleeping with an aparition.

But WAIT a minute...

YOU just put out a "big expose" allegedly proving I WAS in the service...?!?!

Seems you're very confused.

Most liars of your character are, though.

And of COURSE it matters if you were "right or wrong"...You made statements as facts that were, to a person as allegedly informed of military matters as you, NOT factual.

> It's just too much fun to watch you fabricate
> justifications and excuses for your contradictions, and I have a few

Seems YOU are the one with the fabrications, Frankie...

LIke the one you just threw together this past week.

And Frankie...You didn't "rattle" anything...You just proved once again that you are the liar I am calling you. No facts...No proof...No truth...

And the amusing part is seeing what tales of deception you can come up with next to try and perpetuate your acts of deceit.

No wonder you were busted twice. You deserved it.

As I said...seems you are enjoying getting slapped around with your own stupidity.

And you have a lot to spread around...

Hardly. My "big expose", as you describe it, was an exercise in trolling. It worked. But then, all I have to do is mention your name

What you did was blatantly lie. You made statements as fat that were ANYthing but fact, and in the process proved to all herein that Frank Gilliland IS the liar I accuse him of being.

It's not the first time you've been caught, and I dare say the last.

As for fun, I guess you DO like getting slapped around. I don't know many people who would describe having been caught lying in an open, public forum as "fun", but then I guess that's what spins your propeller.

They don't.

I just take a certain amount of pride in having served in the United States Marines, and it's humiliating in no small amount to see someone who wore the same uniform so flagrantly and unabashedly defile both that uniform and himself.

No it doesn't. It just "proves" that you're not yet under arrest.

John Gotti was "caught" on tape numerous times discussing contract hits, fraud, etc etc before he was ever brought to justice.

As I predicted in the part of my message from which Woger ran ("Guvf fcnpr erfreirq sbe Jbtre gb gryy zr V nz Yyblq." which is simple rot13 encoding of "This space reserved for Woger to tell me I am Lloyd."), partially insane Woger mimics Markie's fixation with Steve by seeing Lloyd everywhere.

By Heilian Rules one MUST have an amateur radio license in order to "qualify" (by Heil's "definition") as a amateur.

That's very important to Heil. He has specified as well as defined and his word is paramount. :-)

>Even as a PROFESSIONAL in the field of radio I didn't need a license.

Nor did I for the vast majority of DoD contract work I did.

DoD contracts on RF emission generally do NOT require any contractee or employees to hold any civilian radio operator license. The DoD contract terms were very specific and many, many references to MIL STDs and other documents. None had any mention of "amateur radio licensing."

>Basically, the only thing an Amateur Radio License grants you is the >ability to transmit at power levels greater than those specified in >Part 15.

But ONLY INSIDE the allocated radio amateur bands and then ONLY using the allocated modes/modulations for amateurs.

The minute those amateur radio licensees operate OUTSIDE those ham bands/frequencies, they are ILLEGAL unless they have OTHER radio operator licenses such as Commercial or MARS.

> Every other aspect of amateur radio communication can be done
>-WITHOUT A LICENSE-. The sooner these sooper-dooper hambos realize
>this little factoid the better.

Sorry, Frank, but those "sooper-dooper hambos" have their FIXATION on their "federally-authorized status" as "official" amateur radio operators with licenses. Very important self-definition of their "officialdom."

Rather than enjoy the "magic" of radio communications, those "sooper-dooper hambos" would rather make themselves into some guild-craft-union "authorized" "qualified" "federally licensed" super-beings-of-radio who think they have the "power" to talk down to "lesser" humans by virtue of their federally-authorized license grant.

A further sign of that is the constant use of "official" as a word to denote "what hams do, use (in jargon, forms from the ARRL such as "radiogram" forms, and definitions as made by the ARRL). There is only ONE way to "do" amateur radio and that is by the traditionally-established methods, terminology, abbreviations (as used on "CW"). Amateur radio to them is MUCH MORE than a hobby, a recreation done for personal enjoyment, a non-pecuniary-compensation activity.
It is a LIFESTYLE and the raison d'etre of their apparent being. <shrug>

We must all DO as they do, THINK as they think, PERFORM to their levels of achievement, or we are the subject of countless demeanings, denigrations for not being as superb
as they. <shrug>

They DO threaten his imaginary existance! :-)

Dudly has been living his USMC LIE so long that he MUST keep up the pretense in order to (in his world) "save face."

>> No wonder you were busted twice. You deserved it.

All that Dudly produces for "proof of his active-duty service" is a lot of blustery name-calling of his challengers. He hopes to keep all thinking about his "lying challengers" in order to weasel out of producing any tangible proof.

His DD-214 copy is nowhere to be seen.

Anything in the way of photographs of 18 years of "service" is nowhere to be seen.

Anything in the way of other documentation of those 18 years of "service" is nowhere to be seen.

>>> > I'd think you'd get tired of getting slapped around with your own

"Stupidity?" Not really. A check of USMC units shows which ones are the Reserves and which are the Active-duty. Dudly wasn't in any named Active-duty unit.

>Who's your lawyer, Dud?

He doesn't have one. None would take his "case." :-)

Dudly keeps on insulting those who challenge his truthfulness.
He offers NO proof, only those personal insults. He lost credibility in here years ago...but the "CW" Extras in here all condone his activity. Who woulda thought it?

Rather than quoting anything I've written on the subject, you continue to provide your own thoughts and act as if they're from me. To become a radio amateur, you must pass required exams. That's all there is to it.
You've not done so.

Ambassador Johnny Young was named a Paramount Chief in Sierra Leone.
I didn't participate. My word used to be "Paragon". Later, it was "Omni VI". At the moment, my word is "Orion". :-) :-)

Great! Problem solved. You still don't need one, providing you don't

There's a funny thing about that. The use of those allocated amateur bands and power levels authorized for Part 97 use is what drove us to obtain amateur radio licenses. Go figure!

It is simply the very definition (no "self-definition" about it) of amateur radio. Yeah, I'm absolutely fixated on that license.

To some, it is a lifestyle. To some, amateur radio is a thing in which they participate for a few hours a week or a few hours a month. Every one needs at least one passion, Leonard. I have a number of them. Jobs are what people do in order to support themselves--to put bread on the table and to support their passions. Very few people have jobs which are their passions. Most of those die soon after they stop working because their reason for existence has disappeared.

> We must all DO as they do, THINK as they think, PERFORM to

You don't need to do as I do, THINK as I do (or at all), PERFORM to my levels of achievement. You'll be the subject of countless demeanings and denigrations for as long as you attempt to blow in here and talk down to radio amateurs. You're still on the outside, looking in.
You're still FIXATED on amateur radio and on haunting an amateur radio newsgroup. You've been "getting into" amateur radio for forty years or so. You're right in your prime--if people lived to be 140.

Give it up, Frank. Dudly hasn't got one of those, either.

Sorry, Frankie...Any punk that can "brag" about two and a half promotions to Lance Corporal in ONE tour did not serve honorably.

And you're still a wuss for not following the resources you claim

Nope. Not unless you have an STD, in which case THAT is a "medical matter".

Unless, of course, you also hold to the concept that many physicians hold that altered sexual identity is a birth defect...?!?!

Is THAT your problem, Markie...?!?! Your deviant behaviour is due to a screwed-up gene...?!?! Well THERE is someTHING else you can blame on someONE else. Of course in this case it would be your own ancestors.

> you lied again

Nope. But YOU proved that you don't even understand your own "condiction" any better than you comprehend English. And THAT is pretty poor.

No matter how you try to spin it, Toiddie, the fact remains that scum like you and others who ABUSE the freedoms granted us by the Constitution of the United States will always be in fear of SOMEone...Because you KNOW that little punks like yourself are not long suffered by a responsible and civilized society.

Keeping punks like you under thumb is not "abuse"...It's the will of the people. That's why scum-mouth idiots like Howard Stern are efforted off of PUBLIC airwaves...We don't WANT to hear crap like that.

I am sure that this "site", like the ones you tried to spin off of

You gotta love Robin Williams..... Even if he's nuts! Leave it to Robin
Williams to come up with the perfect plan. What we need now is for our

UN Ambassador to stand up and repeat this message.

Robin Williams' plan...(Hard to argue with this logic!) "I see a lot of people yelling for peace but I have not heard of a plan for peace. So, here's one plan."

1) "The US will apologize to the world for our "interference" in their affairs, past & present. You know, Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, Tojo, Noriega, Milosevic, Hussein, and the rest of those "good ole boys"--- we will never "interfere" again.

2) We will withdraw our troops from all over the world, starting with Germany, South Korea, the Middlle East, and the Philippines. They don't want us there. We would station troops at our borders. No one allowed sneaking through holes in the fence.

3) All illegal aliens have 90 days to get their affairs together and leave. We'll give them a free trip home. After 90 days the remainder will be gathered up and deported immediately, regardless of whom or where they are. They're illegal!! France will welcome them.

4) All future visitors will be thoroughly checked and limited to 90 days unless given a special permit!!!! No one from a terrorist nation will be allowed in. If you don't like it there, change it yourself and don't hide here. Asylum would never be available to anyone. We don't need any more cab drivers or 7-11 cashiers.

5) No foreign "students" over age 21. The older ones are the bombers. If they don't attend classes, they get a "D" and it's back home baby.

6) The US will make a strong effort to become self-sufficient energy-wise. This will include developing nonpolluting sources of energy but will require a temporary drilling of oil in the Alaskan wilderness. The caribou will have to cope for a while.

7) Offer Saudi Arabia and other oil producing countries $10 a barrel for their oil. If they don't like it, we go someplace else. They can go somewhere else to sell their production. (About a week of the wells filling up the storage sites would be enough.)

8) If there is a famine or other natural catastrophe in the world, we will not "interfere." They can pray to Allah or whomever, for seeds, rain, cement or whatever they need. Besides most of what we give them is stolen or given to the army. The people who need it most get very little, if anything.

9) Ship the UN Headquarters to an isolated island someplace. We don't need the spies and fair weather friends here. Besides, the building would make a good homeless shelter or lockup for illegal aliens.

10) All Americans must go to charm and beauty school. That way, no one can call us "Ugly Americans" any longer. The Language we speak is ENGLISH...learn it...or LEAVE...

Now, isn't that a winner of a plan? "The Statue of Liberty is no longer saying "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses." She's got a baseball bat and she's yelling, 'you want a piece of me?' "

And again, I have no doubt that there was a Steven J. Robeson who served in the USMC for about 18 years. I also have no doubt, and I formally concede, that his name appears in the publications you cite.
But once again, you have provide no proof that you are him. Your inability to comprehend such a simple concept is remarkable in that it demonstrates desperation in your evasiveness, as well as utter stupidity for thinking that anyone would actually believe such crap.

Wrong. To get an amateur radio license you must pass required exams.
To become a radio amateur all you need to do is be active in the hobby. Check this out:

amateur -- n. 1. one who does something for pleasure, not for pay.
2. one who is somewhat unskillful. adj. of or done by amateurs.

I don't see anything there about a license or taking tests, do you?

ABUSE? Steve I mainly voice my opinion in the way I feel fit, it's FCC loving scum-bags like you, who don't know the true meaning of freedom of speech.

>Keeping punks like you under thumb is not "abuse"...It's the will

There a BIG different between me and Stern, first off you've never heard my bulletin because if you did you wouldn't of said what said just now. You base you assumption of my bulletins on what I say on the Internet, however the internet and radio are two different mediums and unlike radio and television the internet is not really bounded by "community standards" and the "public interest" which the other mediums (radio and television) are. As a matter of fact last year (2005) the US court of Appeal ruled twice that community standards do not apply to the internet, because the internet is international. Secondly I don't have a billion dollar contract with Sirus radio.

>I am sure that this "site", like the ones you tried to spin off of >RRAP, will enjoy the same amount of "support" that those sites got.

Actually, some of those sites are doing well, One now have over 40 members, thanks in part to Hongfire shuting down one of their Image boards. It just takes time, some of the boards I run still have been logged by the search engines, but here's some advice don't except to be hit by a bunch of people after putting a website up, it isn't going to happen. It takes time, some times months and some times years.
I also know there are a lot of people out there that HATE the FCC like I do so I sure once it really gets going that it to will have a lot of members.

it is a lousey thing to say

you know it isn't true

indeed it almost seem like you wish it were true regardless of the cost to some poor kid, just to use it against me

why are you so obseesed with other people sex life?

if you think Todd is realy promoting kiddy porn report him don't whine on RRAP about it

have you bothered to report Todd yet?

I suspect not becuase you know wether you like it or not he likely within the law (I say that becuase I have frankly not cared enough to go look)

it seems you just want to attack people so that they will leave and let you hold court here on RRAP

Yep, you sure spread it on thick.

Talking about your attorney's wife in a forum like this? You just needed to show everyone how tight you're in with your new Upper Peninsula attorney and his wife, didn't ja?

Always needing time with other people's wives, I see.

So Steve, who's your attorney?

Maybe I could type up one of those old Air Force certificate's of thanks. Thanking him that he isn't claiming an association with the AF.

I took my guy to the movies last night, and we saw Brokeback Mountain.
You know what? IT ISN'T ABOUT COWBOYS AT ALL! I WAS RIPPED OFF!

It is about sheepherders so there was no reason for those dudes to get into a sleeping bag together when they had all those sheep outside.
Real sheepherders would have done like Todd and me do when we're in sheep country.

The problem is, Robin Williams didn't write or say any of the above.

See:

Quoting from snopes.com:

"This item's debut appears to have been a 20 March 2003 posting to the USENET newsgroup alt.motorcycles.harley, and from there it was rapidly disseminated via e-mail and blogs, credited to either "author unknown"

That last part is a genuine Robin Williams quote. The rest isn't.
Somehow the attribution of that last part has gotten applied to the whole thing.

Snopes.com is an excellent resource in separating the true facts from urban legends. I'd advise checking snopes first. Often the truth is even more incredible than the legend.

I won't be sued by you, Toiddie.

There's just too many TONS of your "stuff" out there to use as a defense and to put the onus of responsibility back in YOUR lap.

It appears from the response I've had to other correspondence on similar matters that Toiddie's come to the attention of the FCC on other issues. I have no doubt that his name is likewise familiar to other law enforcement / regulatory agencies.

It doesn't matter what YOU think.

Oh...BTW...There was a pictorial article in the MAG-16 newspaper in 1988 for one of my CG Certificate's of Commendation for lifesaving...A Lance Corporal put his arm through a window and I managed to keep him from bleeding to death.

You're welcome to find your OWN excuse as for how it happens to be the same "Steven J Robeson" that appears on my AOL and QRZ sites, Frankie.

Obviously not.

They wouldn't let you stay in the Corps. (Here comes FRANKIE'S

I understand fine.

You make excuses then whine about people making excuses.

I have no doubt that it was that whining that helped seal your fate in the Corps.

I don't need "excuses", Frankie. I have facts. That you try to pooh-pooh them off is YOUR "excuse".

And, like you, a poor excuse it is, too.

And you're the one that says it's OK.

The DIFFERENCE between you and I on that issue, Markie, is that I don't write "SNIP" or "CUT", yet go ahead and comment on the part of the other person's words that were snipped...I ONLY comment on what's in front of you.

Just like now.

I'm "whing"...?!?!

What's a "whing"...?!?!

As for WHINING, you've still not demosntrated where it is you think I am WHINING.

However we now have HUNDREDS of Markie posts that DO demonstrate >>YOUR<< WHINING, Markie.

I've not needed to make a "flase" report.

Toiddie's done just fine providing PLENTY of his own evidence that he's in violation of both FAA and FCC regualtions.

It was more than me. Toiddie manages to tick off LOT'S of people!
I guess that's why the FCC know's better than to let him have a broadcast license.

What is Ham Radio?

(Preface)
It is becoming increasingly difficult to fly the flag for decency and for civilised behaviour in Radio Hammery. Even the Usenet newsgroups dedicated to the cause have degenerated
into a hotbed of abusive onslaughts by those who ought to know better.
However, there still exists the fundamental basis on which Ham Radio is based, and that will never die. This FAQ ("What Is Ham Radio?") will be regularly published and will not be shouted or bullied down. It is important that those of a technical bent, who are the natural seed-corn of Radio Hammery
and who gravitate towards us to be the real novitiate, can still find us, (and know that we are still here), their fellows.

-----ooooo-----

Please remember that this FAQ is a _POSITIVE EXHORTATION_
to you to exert yourselves to join our fraternity! (If you find otherwise, then perhaps you are already classing yourself in the mediocre groups of those who are criticised in the FAQ and from whom we _MUST_ dissociate? If so - it's never too late for a re-taxonomisation on your part - there's nothing elitist about
us, and we welcome all those who are prepared to put themselves
out in order to join our ranks!)

-----ooooo-----
(Article)
So,.....What is Ham Radio?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for those who are interested in the science of radio wave
propagation and who are also interested in the way that their radios function. It has a long-standing tradition of providing a source of engineers who
are born naturals.

Ham Radio awakens in its aficionados a whole-life
fascination with all things technical and gives
an all-abiding curiosity to improve one's scientific knowledge. It's a great swimming pool, please dive in!

This excitement causes a wish to share the experience
with ones fellow man, and shows itself in the gentlemanly traditions of Ham Radio.

Radio Hams are in a unique privileged position in that they can construct and operate their own equipment! No-one else has this privilege. Users, such as broadcasters,
the po lice and armed farces, CBers and mobile phone users have to purchase ready-made gear. Manufacturers
are not licensed to operate their gear. Radio Hams
are qualified to design, build and then
operate their own pieces of equipment. They do this
with gusto, and also repair and modify their own
equipment. This is a privilege well worth the effort
to gain, and one to be jealously guarded.

The excitement that drives a Radio Ham starts with relatively simple technologies at first, perhaps making
his own Wimshurst machine and primary cells. Small pieces
of test equipment follow, possibly multimeters and signal
generators. Then comes receivers and transmitters. It is with the latter that communication with like-minded technically motivated people takes off. The scope for technical development grows with the years
and now encompasses DSP and DDS. There is also a great deal of excitement in the areas of computer programming to
be learnt and applied.

The technical excitement motivates Radio Hams to compete
with each other to determine who has designed and manufactured
the best-quality station. This competitiveness is found in DXing, competitions and fox-hunts.

-----OOOOO----

However, beware! A Ham Radio licence is such a desirable thing to have that there are large numbers of people who wish to be thought of
as Radio Hams when, in fact, they are nothing of the kind! Usually such people are a variation of the CB Radio hobbyist; they buy their radios off the shelf and send them back to be repaired; they are not interested in technical discussion
and sneer at those who are; they have no idea how
their radios work inside and have no wish to find out;
they are free with rather silly personal insults;
they have not satisfied any technical qualification
and their licences prevent the use of
self-designed-and-built equipment.

These CB types engage in the competitive activities
with their Cheque-Book-purchased off-the-shelf radios
in a forlorn effort to prove that they are Radio Hams.

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

-----ooooo-----

One such CB type is the so-called "Not-Ham". Otherwise known as the CBer-Masquerading-As-A-Radio-Ham, this type
had their background in the hobby that is CB Radio and not in the technical pursuits that lead up to a coveted Ham licence.
Easily recognised by their boasts of the criminal activity of 11 metre SSB operation, one wonders why they don't go back to the CB Bands if such bands are dearer in their hearts than are the Ham Bands? No _REAL Radio Hams associate with those who made an illegal installation of transmitting equipment before being
in possession of an appropriate licence.

-----ooooo-----

One infallible way to disambiguate the CB Radio Hobbyist
from the _REAL_ Radio Ham is to solicit their view of the difference between CB Radio and Ham Radio. A Radio Ham will perceive Ham Radio to be a technical pursuit and will perceive CB Radio to be a social communications facility
no different in essence to a land-line telephone or a GSM mobile in the hands of a 6-year-old. Thus a Radio Ham
could also hold a CB licence safe in the knowledge that such a licence says no more about him than having a land-line telephone, whilst continuing to regard Ham Radio as a separate technical pursuit.

A CB Radio hobbyist, on the other hand, sees no difference between a Ham Radio licence and a CB Radio licence. To him, they are sisters-under-the-skin. Wrongly, the CB Radio Hobbyist then tries to classify himself as the equal of the Radio Ham when, in fact, he is nothing of the kind. A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme.

-----ooooo-----

One group of people who claim to be of the standard of Radio Hams but who are in reality nothing more than an apology for the failure of a CBer are those class B licensees who falsely proclaimed that they were against the use of a Morse Test to control access to the HF bands, until, that is, a test was introduced at their intellectual level, the intellectual level of 6-year-olds.

6 year-olds simply lack the mathematical tool kit to enable them to handle even the simplest algebraic manipulation for Ohm's Law and thus, the disgraceful Class Ber's in the aforementioned category are not Radio Hams by any stretch of the imagination!

Remember - A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds,
or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme!

Does his so-called 'faq' now contain a warning about not repairing

Or has he still got his head stuck in the sand?

We've seen your idea of civilised behaviour, G4SDW - posting nasty comments like these using anagrams of another amateur's name:
http://groups.google.com/group/uk.radio.amateur/msg/7ff9b267900f1c9e?dmode=source

It's the kind of "civilised behaviour" that the hobby can do without.

So Steve, who's your attorney?

Yet you are compelled to reply to my posts. Quite the paradox, Dud.

Gee, let me stroll on down to 7-11 and see if they have it on the rack.....

You make more than enough excuses for your ignorance about your alleged MOS and lack of any proof of your alleged service.

Excuse for what? Your ignorance about the information on a DD-214 (after you claimed to have several of them)?

Quick-time, harch!

We've been through this before, Dud. Your excuse -then- was that I "implied" such a relationship existed, yet you never did respond to my reply where I quoted my own post on the subject. Maybe your ISP sucks and you didn't get the post -- shall I post it again?

Yet you obfuscate the issue as follows:

Obviously you -don't- understand.

Where?

My only "excuse" is that your "facts" can't be verified. Feel free to spin that any way you want.

Who's your lawyer, Dud?
